REPORT AXIS IN PEACE MOVE

France May Be Go-Between

AXIS IN PEACE BID VIA PARIS?

VICHY, Oct. 24 (INS)—A sensational rumor that France may launch a new peace offensive on behalf of the axis powers was current in diplomatic quarters here today. The rumor spread as Vice-Premier Pierre Laval met Adolf Hitler in Paris for a second conference on France's role in the "new order" in Europe.

TRANSPORT'S END—According to Nazi-censored caption, this mass of twisted steel was a British troop transport . . . pictured after it was grounded on some undisclosed beach. The craft, which may have been a destroyer, fell prey to Nazi bombers.

According to the rumor, the peace offensive may be launched as soon as Germany's present negotiations with France and Spain have been satisfactorily concluded.

France, it was intimated in diplomatic quarters, may act as an intermediary to try to effect a peace settlement between Great Britain and the axis powers.

If Hitler does not want to continue the war, it was felt that France would be in an excellent position to launch the peace offensive.

Belief prevailed that if Hitler succeeds in bringing France and Spain definitely into the Axis orbit, France might be requested to point out to England the futility of continuing to wage war against a united Europe.

The peace offensive rumor spread in diplomatic circles here following Laval's arrival back in Paris to confer with Hitler.

Laval left this morning for Paris. He planned to be on hand in case Hitler wished to confer with him immediately upon the latter's return from his conference with Generalissimo Franco on the Franco-Spanish border.

Word reached here this afternoon that Hitler did desire to confer with Laval again and the meeting took place in Paris either late in the morning or this afternoon.

Petain Off for Paris To Sign New Hitler Pact

BERN, Switzerland, Oct. 24 (AP)—Marshal Phillipe Petain, chief of state of France, left Vichy today, according to word reaching diplomatic sources here, to go to Paris, where it was believed he would sign a new French-German agreement superseding the existing armistice accord.

He was accompanied by several aides, including the minister of justice, the reports said.

The news was first received through diplomatic channels because correspondents and officials at Vichy were under strict orders to give no details of the marshal's departure, his destination or the purpose of his trip.

Reports of Hitler's talks with Laval and Franco received here said they had laid the groundwork for an Axis offensive not only in the Mediterranean but in the South Atlantic as well.

Informed French sources said Hitler and Laval had put the finishing touches to an agreement

Willkie Reiterates Charges Denied in Roosevelt Address

HARBOR CREEK, Pa., Oct. 24—Wendell Willkie today reiterated the charge that President Roosevelt had personally intervened in European affairs at the time of the Munich conference in 1938 which resulted in the obliteration of the Czechoslovakia as an independent nation.

Willkie hammered home his charge in the face of a denial by President Roosevelt at Philadelphia last night that he (Roosevelt) had telephoned to Mussolini and Hitler "to sell Czechoslovakia down the river."

His sole error of fact in the original charge, Willkie told a trainside audience, was in the mode of communication with a foreign chief of state which President Roosevelt employed.

"As a matter of fact," Willkie reiterated, "the third term candidate did not telephone Hitler—he telegraphed him."

BLASTS 1932 PROMISES

Willkie's address, drafted upon completion of Mr. Roosevelt's first avowed political speech last night, was a definite point-by-point rebuttal of the issues stressed by the President. It followed, too, upon the heels of Willkie's declaration before a New York audience last night in which, with reference to his repeated challenge to Mr. Roosevelt to meet him in personal debate he said:

"Whenever it becomes my duty to say of another man that he has falsified the record, I liek to look him face to face and say so."

CALLS SPEECH OBSOLETE

In his nationally broadcast rejoinder to the President, Willkie levelled the charge that Mr. Roosevelt was attempting to fight out the present campaign on the basis of the issuehs in 1932, when Mr. Roosevelt achieved the White House.

The President's speech, he said, was "obsolete" and "on order" like the materials for national defense. It was obsolete he said, because he discussed the issues of 1932, not the issues of 1940. He said:

"Last night, the third-term candidate, referring to the Democratic platform of 1940, quoted

Nazi Bombers Stab At London in Rain

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP)—Heavy formations of German planes made short, repeated stabs at a London shrouded in thick, chill weather today but succeeded only in dropping bombs in rural areas.

Observers reported large groups of raiders crossed the southeast coast early in the afternoon, most of them obscured by clouds, and heading in the direction of London.

A few moments later a flight of nine fighter planes, acting as a rear guard, was glimpsed as it scooted through low clouds.

The approach of these planes caused a second raid alert of the day in London, but, like the first it was brief. No gunfire or bomb explosions were heard in London during the first alert.

German planes were reported also to have flown over the vicinity of Liverpool and a west coast town.

The government announced tonight that two German planes were shot down by British fighters during today's fighting and one was destroyed last night.

British credited a heavy channel rain and the anti-aircraft defenses on London's outskirts with holding the raiders at bay overnight, giving the city its quietest night in the last 17.

Frequent bomb blasts heralded the on-schedule arrival of the Luftwaffe shortly after dark but the attack quickly tapered off and a "raiders passed" signal sounded not long after midnight, as on the previous night.

The Germans renewed their assault shortly before dawn and archies barked sporadically, but the all clear sounded again a short time later.

AXIS IS 'NON-BELLIGERENT' TOWARD U.S., ITALY REVEALS

ROME, Oct. 24 (AP)—An authoritative Fascist commentator defined the Rome-Berlin attitude toward the United States as one of "non-belligerency" today and another charged that the United States rearmament effort is but a mask for an imperialistic program.

Mario Appelius, military commentator for Premier Muesolini's newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, explained that the axis was "limiting" itself to "non-belligerency" toward the United States because of "categorical imperatives."

He thus used for the first time the word which Fascists employed to describe Italy's attitude before she entered the war on the side of Germany, and which now is used to describe the status of Spain.

Virginio Gayda, who often speaks the inner feeling of the regime, writing in Il Giornale d'Italia, said United States imperialism had widened from "dollar imperialism" to a "political and military monopoly of positions and bases shown in ever vaster constellations around the starry republic."

Writing in Il Giornale d'Italia, Gayda said the United States "is entering imperialistic waters which formerly belonged to England."

He interpreted the recent statement of Frank Knox, secretary of the navy, that the United States would obtain additional Pacific bases as evidence America is "preparing to lend another hand to the

Youths Rush Draft Boards for Numbers

In increasing numbe thousands of Massachusetts youths and men stormed their draft boards today to le the number each will hold Tuesday when the nation chooses by lot its first peacetie conscript army.

BALM SUIT ENDS IN MISTRAL, HINT CRIMINAL ACTION

Abruptly halting proceedings, Judge Paul G. Kirk, in superior court today, declared a mistrial in the $20,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Mrs. Fanny Meshon of Roxbury and dismissed the jury.

Possible criminal action to grow out of the civil case was indicated when, a short time later, Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle arrived at court and was closeted with Judge Kirk.

Mrs. F. Meshon

The mistrial was occasioned by a charge, made on the witness stand by Barney Meshon, husband of Fanny, that a prospective witness in the case had been offered $500 to give false testimony.

Defendant in the suit was Mrs Sarah M. Toy, wealthy middle-aged widow, of Walk Hill st., Mattapan, mother of three children.

COURT, MESHON CONFER

She was charged by Mrs. Meshon with enticing Barney to leave his home and to file a divorce suit against the mother of his four grown children.

After Meshon had made his charge of the $500 offer to a witness yesterday, the case was halted and Judge Kirk conferred with counsel and Meshon.

The case was resumed afterward, however, and went on again today for a short period before Judge Kirk rose and declared the mistrial.

Prior to this action, Samuel C. Baker, a Boston city constable, was called to the stand and testified that he served a summons on Robert Talent of Hutchins st., Roxbury.

Talent protested against appearing, Baker said, stating that there had been a big fire at his camps in Litchfield, N. H., with a loss of between $30,000 and $40,000 and his presence was required there.

The constable said that as a result there was a telephone call made to counsel in the case and the constable heard Talent thank the lawyer for excusing him.

At no time was there any conversation about money or any offer of money, the constable testified, except with regard to the $2 witness fee which accompanied the summons.

Talent's wife and their daughter, Mrs. Ethel Green, were called to the stand and both testified they knew nothing about the case and heard no conversation regarding money.

Excitement mounted as harassed clerks and stenographers raced to complete in shortest possible time completed lists of registered men from 21 to 36 years eligible for a year's military training.

Completed lists were published in 59 of the state's 171 boards, and indications were the number might approach 100 by sunset. All lists must be published before the numbers are drawn in Washington Tuesday.

Dozens of young men anxious for training or to complete their service speedily have applied at their draft boards. They wished to be listed as volunteers and to waive any chances of deferment.

SELECT SITES

Draft boards generally have completed establishment of their personnel and have moved into quarters or selected their sites. Stenographers and clerks were still being hired by a few boards today, the clerks at $150 a month, maximum, and the others at $100 monthly. Largest possible monthly payroll is $350 for a section with 4500 or more registrants.

Largest single draft area yet reported is in East Boston, where Board 12 has registered 5314 residents and 340 transients.

Largest payroll authorized in the 59 already filed was in Webster, where Board 156 will draw $288. By contrast, Dukes County's Board 173 will pay out to help but $100.

In Boston, 25 out of 27 boards have chosen locations, with boards 13 and 28 expected to establish headquarters by nightfall.

BOARD LOCATIONS

The Boston boards follow:

Board 12—Ward 1 (precincts 1 to 13 incl., 20 and 21), Augustus Loschi, public library, East Boston.

JANITOR ARRESTED IN BROKER'S DEATH

Henry L. Bisson, 46-year-old Back Bay janitor, was charged with manslaughter today in the mystery death of Walter G. Kennedy, 56, former millionaire head of a bond house.

Kennedy died at City Hospital yesterday as a result of skull fracture and lacerated brain, injuries, police charge, received in a scuffle with Bisson three weeks ago.

The warrant against Bisson was granted by Chief Justice Putnam in municipal court on request of Sergt. William Long of Back Bay police.

Bisson was immediately arraigned, pleaded not guilty and was held in $10,000 bonds for a hearing on Nov. 8.

Sergt. Long said that Kennedy had been visiting a widow, Mrs. Helen Metcalf, at a St. Botolph st. house, where Bisson is janitor, just before he was fatally injured.

The woman was quoted as saying Kennedy had been requested to leave because of house rules and that the altercation occurred as he went out the front door.

He complained of headaches and for three days preceding his death was under a physician's care, police said. Once a society playboy who lit cigars with $10 bills when celebrating with friends, he lay ill in a small Massachusetts ave. room until prevailed upon to call a doctor.

Kennedy Called In 'Consultation'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said today ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy was returning home from London for consultation and that President Roosevelt "has emphasized the difference between that and resignation."

He stood on it answer when reporters inquired whether Kennedy would return his post in England.

The New York Post said yesterday Kennedy had advised Mr. Roosevelt he did not return to London and that he would make public his reasons. Further, the Post said Kennedy has resented what he believed to be the President's disregard of his views—Editor's Ne.

Kennedy reached Lisbon yesterday from London Traveling from Lisbon by Clipper plane, he was expected to reach New York Saturday.

Carol Wants Roosevelt To Intercede With Spain

LISBON, Oct. 24 (AP)—Jean Pangal, one-time Rumanian minister to Portugal, today asked Warden M. Wilson, U. S. charge d'affaires, to cable President Roosevelt a request to intercede with the Spanish government in behalf of former King Carol and other members of the Rumanian royal party now under detention in Seville.

The United States legation was reported studying the request. Pangal described Carol's action as a move to place himself under the President's "protection."

Carol, his companion, Mme. Magda Lupescu, and Ernest Urdareanu, former minister of the palace in Bucharest, were placed under virtual arrest Tuesday and are being guarded at their hotel in Seville, Spain, while the Spanish government considers their case.

Prior to the announcement of the arrests Carol was in frequent telephonic communication with Lisbon and had been reported making plans to fly to the United States.

The man who saw Charge D'Affaires Wilson was Jean Pangal, one-time Rumanian minister to Lisbon and Carol's first minister to nationalist Spain. He remained loyal to Carol and was named his personal representative by telegraph yesterday.

The ex-king, through Pangal, promised Prime Minister Antonio De Oliveira Salazar, of Portugal, that if he were allowed to come to Portugal he would remain here until the end of the war and refrain from all political activity.

MRS. X VOTE QUIZ STIRS BOARD ROW

Between "Mrs. X" and "Mr. Z" and "No. 54" and the like, things were pretty confusing today at a Boston Election Commission hearing concerning charges that 129 persons are illegally registered as voters, because they don't live at the addresses given.

One of the persons registered doesn't live there any more because he has died, but that one was fairly easily ironed out because the commission had already removed the name from the voting list.

The charges were made by Henry J. Allen of Bowdoin st., Dorchester, and when they were heard it made quite a quarrelsome hour's session, with Allen's counsel, Theodore P. Hollis, state representative from Stoneham and director of registration for the Republican state committee, clashing with the commissioners.

HOLLIS AND MOTLEY ROW

Chairman William A. Motley, Jr., of the commission accused Hollis of trying to protect his detectives rather than the citizens when Hollis insisted his investigators be designated only by letters.

So a bespectacled, matronly-appearing woman operative of the Burns Detective Agency was tagged "Mrs. X" and testified blandly that she had investigated a person designated as "No. 54," but didn't know why she was looking the party up.

Anyway, she said, "No. 54" didn't live at the address she had, but she didn't know if the Mr. Griffin there, who told her that, was a lodger or the owner or who he was.

Then Hollis wanted the commission to accept as prima facie evidence some letters that had come back marked "Not Known at Address."

PROOF DEMANDED

That didn't set with the commissioners at all and they told him that inasmuch as his side was making the charges he'd have to prove them by bringing in the parties.

Hollis said he wasn't going to put on any witnesses but that he'd "just give these people a chance to build up crooked defenses."

"Do you mean to intimate that the commission is trying to help them?" snapped Commr. Frederick E. Dowling, who is a Republican himself.

Hollis said no. Dowling said that each person registered as a voter is investigated by police—and why take the word of private detectives against the police. Hollis said police lists weren't accurate and that once a man wrote a book about it.

Well—then a "Mr. Z," who is another private investigator, took the stand and said he had probed two cases. In one, the man had moved away a year ago and in the other the house owner didn't know the party.

Then the matter of the dead man who died after registering came up and the commission decided to adjourn until tomorrow.

QUABBIN CHARGES BEFORE U.S. JURY

With the project hardly completed and the water turned on by the Governor only yesterday, it was learned today that the federal grand jury is probing possible charges of graft in connection with the $73,000,000 Quabbin reservoir and pipe lines.

Although no federal official here would comment on the case, it is understood the subpoenas have been issued to an unstated number of persons for their appearance before the grand jury Monday.

The probe is believed to be connected with the sale of pipe lines and "certain phases" of the project, which had federal money involved.

Pipe line costs of the huge water system, largest of its type in the world and serving the metropolitan Boston area, were between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000.

Government agents are known to have been working for some time on what were described only as "nasty charges" in connection with the project.

When asked regarding the purported Grand Jury probe, U. S. Atty. Edmund J. Brandon merely said:

"We have no comment to make."

It is understood, however, that at least a score of witnesses will receive the summonses to appear before the Grand Jury.

Man, 46, Gets 5 Yrs. on Young Girl's Charges

Promising that "this time" a prisoner before him was going to "get a good sentence," Judge Frederick W. Fosdick in Middlesex Superior Court today ordered the man to serve a total of five to six years in State's prison for two serious crimes.

John F. Lyons 46, of Apsley st., Hudson, now serving six months in the House of Correction for assault and battery, was found guilty by a jury of the charges in connection with the story of a 14-year-old girl.

"Have you anything to say before I pronounce sentence?" Judge Fosdick asked him.

"That girl was lying," Lyons said.

"Oh, no, she wasn't," said Judge Fosdick.

"My record isn't so bad," Lyons then suggested.

"That depends on what you call bad," Judge Fosdick commented.

"Well," said Lyons, "can I serve this sentence you're going to give me concurrent with the one I'm doing now?"

"Oh, no, you can't," said the court. "This time you're going to get a good sentence."

Judge Fosdick then imposed two two and a half to three-year sentences, one on each count, and ordered that the time could not be served concurrently.

New Haven Line Freed of Tanker

NEW LONDON, Ct., Oct. 24 (AP)—An oil tanker was freed from mud beneath the Shaw's cove drawbridge today after disrupting service on the New Haven railroad's shore line division for more than seven hours.

About a dozen trains were delayed, railroad officials said. Some were rerouted, and it was necessary to transfer passengers from at least five others by bus to the other side. Among trains stalled on either side of the bridge were the Federal express and the New Englander.

The tanker stuck fast beneath the raised drawbridge about 4 a. m. (E. S. T.) and was not floated until 1:30 a. m.

F.D. Denies Secret War Pacts, Insists G. O. P. Charges False

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—As an old campaigner who loves "a good fight," President Roosevelt swung today into the last stages of his re-election drive with this declaration in support of his "most solemn assurance" that America has no secret pacts with any nation.

"It is for peace I have labored and it is for peace that I shall labor all the days of my life."

Mr. Roosevelt came back to the capital—to draft more speeches—after tabulating for a cheering audience in Philadelphia and the nation by radio last night what he termed the "more fantastic misstatements of this campaign."

In "'repeating, and repeating, and repeating falsehoods," he said, his opposition has imported "certain techniques of propaganda, created and developed in dictator countries."

Not once in his address in Philadelphia's Convention Hall did Mr. Roosevelt utter Wendell L. Willkie's name.

LISTS HIS CHARGES

But among the "outrageous" and "unpardonable" falsifications which he attributed to partisans and Republican leaders were charges that:

His administration "wishes to lead this country into war;" that it has failed to make a job for even a single man; that the industrial system is prostrate, and that business is stifled and unable to make a profit.

Truthful campaign discussion of public issues is essential to the American form of government, Mr. Roosevelt asserted.

"But it is entirely a different thing," he added, "for any party o. any candidate to state, for example, that the President of the United States telephoned to Mussolini and Hitler to sell Czechoslovakia down the river; or that the unfortunate unemployed of the nation are going to be driven into concentration camps; or that the Social Security funds of the nation will not be in existence when the workers of today become old enough to apply for them; or that the election of the present government means the end of American democracy within four years.

"I think they know, and I know we know, that all of these statements are false."

14,500 PACK HALL

He spoke to a throng that took every one of the 14,500 seats in the Auditorium, cheered him for six and a half minutes before he could begin his address, and interrupted 91 times with applause, laughter, and occasional boos when he struck heavily at his opposition.

The ovation accorded the chief executive at the hall was a climax to a day in which he had appeared before tens of thousands of people at Wilmington, Del., and on a 40-mile motor tour to national defense plants in Philadelphia and Camden, N. J.

Standing under spotlights knifing through a curtain of tobacco smoke, Mr. Roosevelt was alternately sarcastic, droll, grim and emphatic as he delivered his address.

Confronting him also was the taks of whipping together at least four more political speeches, one of which is scheruled for Madison Square Garden in New York Monday night.

An "outrageously false charge" that the Administration wants to bring the nation into war, he said at Philadelphia, had been "made to strike terror into the hearts of our citizens."

"That charge is contrary to every fact, every purpose of the past eight years," he said. "Throughout these years my every act and every thought has been directed to the end of preserving the peace of the world, and more particularly, the peace of the United States—the peace of the western hemisphere.

"To Republicans and Democrats, to every man, woman and child in the nation I say — your President and your great Secretary of State are following the road to peace."

He said he stood on his party's platform, which stated that "we will not participate in foreign wars" or send the country's armed forces outside the Americas except in case of attack.

"It is for peace I have labored," Mr. Roosevelt declared, "and it is for peace that I shall labor all the days of my life."

He described as the "worst bombshell of fear" loosed by Republican leaders an accusation that the government had entered into secret agreements with foreign nations. It had even been intimated, he said, that the country's participation in some foreign war had been pledged. He said:

"I give you, and the people of this country this most solemn assurance: There is no secret treaty, no secret obligation, no secret commitment, no secret understanding in any shape or form, direct or indirect, with any other government, or any other nation in any part of the world, to involve this nation in any war or for any other purpose."

And he interpolated: "Is that clear?"

Dictators have been successful in establishing falsehoods as truth, Mr. Roosevelt said at one point, "only because they were able to control the press and radio and to stifle all opposition."

"That is why," he continued, "I cannot bring myself to believe that in a democracy like ours, where the radio and a part of the press remain open to both sides, repetition of deliberate misstatements will ever prevail."

Applause interrupted that sentence when he came to the word "part," and in the interval, Mr. Roosevelt waggled his finger at newspapermen reporting the speech.

WILLKIE STAMPS IN DEMAND

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—The Republican national committee's Willkie poster-stamp campaign grew in magnitude today as demand for the attractive and impressive stickers increased tremendously.

Throughout the nation new orders for the stickers were sent out by banks, industrial concerns, business houses and many newspapers for huge quantities of these stamps to be pasted on the backs of envelopes and other articles of mail.

While Republican national campaign headquarters in New York were unable to state definitely today how many of these stamps have already been distributed, it is believed millions will eventually find their way into the hands of Willkie admirers in all sections of the country.

Printing houses in many large cities are being pressed with an increasing demand for the stamps.

Favorite of the new "Willkie for President" stamps, of which there are 20 different designs, all in colors, is the Lincoln-Willkie sticker.

Another design bears the picture of Willkie and Republican Vice-Presidential Nominee Charles L. McNary with the slogan "For the dawn of a new day," and still another popular type is the plain "Win with Willkie" sticker. Another has the words "My choice" above a picture of the presidential candidate

State Campaign Speeds Up

The present administration on Beacon Hill emerged more sharply as the prime issue in the gubernatorial battle today, with the candidates as par apart as their campaigning cavalcades.

Atty.-Gen. Paul A. Dever headed for the Berkshires and speeches at Pittsfield, Adams and North Adams. The Democratic aspirant centered criticism of Gov. Saltonstall on his "virtually abandoning" Chapter 90 in the road program providing for construction of roads with federal and state aid.

Governor Saltonstall and the entire G. O. P. state ticket headed for Worcester and Clinton today with their standard bearer stressing importance of a sound government warranting confidence of its citizens.

The Governor defined the chief issue of the campaign with the words, "Do you want to continue for the next two years a government of honest service for all the citizens—a square deal for all the citizens—or do you want to turn the state government back to the old crowd?"

His prediction, "We are going to win this election," brought loud applause at rallies in Stoneham, Melrose, Malden, Everett and the Boston City Club.

Willkie Reiterates Charges F.D. Denied

this language from that platform:

"'We will not participate in foreign wars and we will not send our army, naval or air forces to fight in foreign lands outside of the Americas except in cases of attack.'

"I hope, I hope sincerely, that that pledge made last night by the third-term candidate, based upon the 1940 platform of the Democratic Party, is remembered by him longer than he remembered the same pledge that he made with reference to the provisions of the Democratic platform of 1932.

"If he does not remember it longer, then shortly our boys will be on the transports, sailing for some foreign shore."

HURLS CHALLENGE

Willkie repeated that he approved of old age pensions, unemployment insurance, colective bargaining and other social gains, but declared that "if we continue along the road of deficit financing . . . the end will be financial chaos, bankruptcy and inflation which will result in the loss of every social gain as well as the loss of liberty."

Willkie spoke from his campaign train in this town a few miles from Erie, Pa. The 24-minute speech was broadcast over a nationwide NBC network.

Speaking of 1932 promises, he recited planks in the Democratic platform of that year—he pointed out earlier that he voted for Mr. Roosevelt in 1932—said "the New Deal candidate" accepted these promises, and then declared that they were not carried out.

"Now, Mr. third term candidate," he said several times after making these charges, "tell the American people whether Wendell Willkie falsified that part of the record"

AIDED DICTATORS

Willkie also charged that the President "killed the London economic conference" advocated in the 1932 Democratic platform and "repudiated the program of stabilization which he himself had instructed our delegates to present."

"And, in my judgment, by that act he contributed more to the fall of the democracies and the rise of the dictators than was performed by any single act of any government in the world."

The President, Willkie said, was trying to violate a tradition of 150 years, and yet, Willkie added, "offered not one word" in defense of his attempt

TALKS ON DEFENSE JOBS

Mr. Roosevelt, the Republican candidate continued, opposed deposit bank insurance—although he pointed out the insurance act is one of the achievements of his administration.

Willkie declared Sen. Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan was the man largely responsible for putting into the banking act of 1933 the deposit insurance feature.

TALKS ON DEFENSE

"Another interesting claim by the third term candidate," Willkie said, was in connection with the employment of men in national defense industries. It was a tragedy, Willkie adde, that it was defense industries which brought re-employment and quoted Mr. Roosevelt as saying in 1936 that such employment was not substantial.

He also quoted Mr. Roosevelt as having said recovery based on armaments was "fool's gold," and added "I agree with him.

He proposed to build defense materials, too, if elected President, Willkie said, but he said it was necessary to build our normal industrial economy so that there would not be deflation when the defense program was tempered off. He proposed to do this, he declared.

Taking issue with Mr. Roosevelt's figures on recovery, Willkie said the "history of his failure lay in the relief rolls of this country."

9 MILLION JOBLESS

Nothing the third-term candidate can say, he said, can discount the fact there are 9,000,000 men out of work.

Willkie said Mr. Roosevelt promised to supply work for the youth of America, then asked why he had not done so in his years in office.

In Chicago the other night, Willkie said, he put certain questions to Mr. Roosevelt which the President did not answer.

He said the 1932 Democratic platform promised a balanced budget and lower governmental expenditures, but expenditures had risen by billions and no attempt budget.

"Mr. Third Term Candidate, tell the people if Wendell Willkie falsified that part of the record," Willkie declared.

Referring to the President's address last night, he said Mr. Roosevelt said this country would not participate in foreign wars and added he hoped this "pledge was remembered longer" than the third term candidate remembered the promises of 1932.

"If he does not remember longer," Willkie declared, "then I fear our boys will soon be on transports" bound for fighting.

Detroit News Declares Stand For Willkie

DETROIT, Oct. 24 (AP)—The politically independent Detroit News said in a front-page editorial today that "the present emergency demands election of a new President.—Wendell L. Willkie."

The News, which supported no candidate in 1936, announced it believed in endorsement only in periods when an emergency existed and declared it believed the current campaign an "extreme emergency."

"The President's eight years have been marked by a deliberate exploitation of disunity," the editorial said. "In advancing social legislation for which there was obvious need he has gone so far as to promote class dissension, which democratic statesmanship should seek to adjust and compose."

BETTING ON F. D. NOW DOWN TO 1-2

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—With the national election only 10 days in the offing, Franklin Delano Roosevelt is a 1 to 2 favorite to be returned victor over his Republican rival, Wendell Lewis Willkie, Collyer's News Bureau reports today.

Heavy sentiment for Willkie in the East, particularly in New York has cut the odds in recent weeks, but not enough to establish the G. O. P. standard-bearer as an even money choice.

Professional gamblers and price makers admit they are "up in the air" on this election, and will not be shocked by anything, from a Willkie victory to a Roosevelt landslide.

According to current odds, four states which are quoted as "even money" at present, will decide the 1940 presidential election. New York, which in smart circles is said to be leaning to Willkie, is most important of all. The other three are Illinois, Massachusetts and Ohio.

Official odds differ considerably from the Gallup Poll. Wisconsin, for example, is regarded as a certainty for the Republicans and Milwaukee reports no Democratic money in sight. Dr. Gallup has Wisconsin going to Roosevelt.

Despite the recent speech by Sen. Hiram Johnson, who blasted the third term, California still is 1 to 3 favoring Roosevelt. Wagering in New Jersey also favors F. D. R. but smart money in Michigan likes Willkie.

Irvin Cobb Flays Ickes' Aide, Sifton

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Oct. 24 (AP)—Irvin S. Cobb, humorist and writer, addressing a Willkie rally, charged that Paul Sifton, "a confidential officer in the consumers' division of the interior department," had written an article in a Communist magazine Fight, which advised against enlistments in the army and navy during the recent recruiting campaign.

"Tell them to go to hell!" Cobb quoted the article.

"Go to Washington," continued Cobb, "and you'll find him comfortably ensconced as a well-paid officeholder of our government, drawing pay these several years as an employe of the Uncle Sam he despises.

" . . . He stands powerfully high in the New Deal, being confidential officer in the consumers' division of the interior department and the favorite economic adviser of his chief, Harold Ickes."

Sifton Admits Writing Article

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—Paul Sifton, an official in the Interior Department, said today that the anti-war article by him which was referred to at a Willkie rally last night by Irvin S. Cobb was written in 1933 for "a now defunct magazine called Fight.

Cobb's "discovery" of the article, he said, "is as mouldy as his recent humor."

"As a matter of fact," Sifton said, "I wrote the article, 'Uncle Sam Wants You,' when I was a private citizen in New York in 1933 for the first edition of a now defunct magazine called Fight. I was an ex-soldier and still felt bitterly against war."

He added:

"I served in the last war with the sixth field artillery, first division, AEF, and I am ready to serve again. Where did Mr. Cobb serve?"

Communists Banned From N. Y. Ballot

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 24 (INS)—Supreme Court Justice William H. Murray today issued an order striking the Communist ticket from the New York State ballot.

Justice Murray said he was convinced that a sufficient number of signatures were not obtained in either Greene or Franklin Counties "without fraudulent misrepresentation and concealment of the purport of the petition." Counsel for the Communist Party announced an immediate appeal to the appellate division. Today's order was requested by American Legion representatives.

James R. Bancroft To Support Willkie

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 24 (INS)—James R. Bancroft, president of the American Institute of Finance and for 30 years a Democrat, today before the New England Lumberman's Ass'n, announced his support of Wendell Willkie for President.

"In this presidential campaign," said Bancroft, "we have two outstanding issues which are both simple and fundamental —the third term and the relation of government to business."

50,000,000 Popular Vote Now Predicted

Copyright, 1940, by Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP) —Heavy registrations throughout the country, particularly in the big cities, indicated today that a history-breaking popular vote of around 50,000,000 may be cast in the presidential election next month.

A compilation of official and estimated registrations in each state disclosed a possible total size of 49,719,200, or about 37 for every 100 of population.

This figure compares with actual vote of 45,647,117 in the Roosevelt-Landon contest in 1936, and 39,816,522 in the Roosevelt-Hoover election of 1932.

It is based on an analysis of voter-filings and other data showing 60,576,979 may be eligible to vote in the November 5 election, or about 45 percent of the total population of 131,409,881.

STAY-AT-HOMES FREED

Comparison of the eligible vote four years ago with the actual vote cast revealed that as 15 to 20 per cent of those qualified remained away from the polls. In some southern states stay-at-home vote ran as high as 50 per cent. This was taken to account in arriving at this year's estimated vote.

The census bureau estimates the number of "postal" voters this year at 40,528,000. This figure includes natives and naturalized citizens 21 years old and over.

However, many potential voters never take the trouble to qualify by registering or filing other necessary steps presided by the various states.

New York and California, with an aggregate of 61 out of the 531 electoral votes, turned in record-smashing registrations for the coming elections.

New York has an estimated registration of 6,891,238 and an estimated vote of 6,202,000, a gain of 605,602 over the actual vote four years ago.

4,052,395 IN CALIFORNIA

California's official registration is 4,052,395, including 2,419,625 Democrats and 1,458,373 Republicans.

New York City reached an all-time high with 3,388,741 persons qualifying to cast ballots on Nov. 5. That is an increase of 488,577 over 1936 registrations. Women were shown to have caused much of the gain.

The state-by-state analyses of estimated eligible voters, as distinguished from potentials, showed Pennsylvania might cast 4,600,000 ballots this year as against an actual 4,138,105 in 1936. Estimates for other heavy-voting states.

Illinois — Estimated 4,250,000 against 3,956,522.
Ohio — Estimated 3,250,000 against 3,012,425.
New Jersey—Estimated 2,024,000 against 1,820,437.
Indiana — Estimated 1,725,000 against 1,650,897.
Massachusetts — Estimated 2,100,000 against 1,840,357.
Michigan — Estimated 1,945,000 against 1,804,093.

The final figures in each instance are those of 1936.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Avoid Errors, Draft Boards Told by U. S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—Ten pages of minute instructions were sent out today to forewarn the clerks of 6500 local draft boards against errors that might cast reflection on the outcome of next Tuesday's national draft lottery.

Stressing again and again the need for "absolute accuracy," the Manual of Information for local board clerks, sent out from national selective headquarters, said:

"However unintentional and innocent an error may be, it is always possible that registrants and their friends may charge that the local board and members of its clerical staff are unjust."

DETAILED DATA

Designed to accelerate preparations for the lottery, the pamphlet gave detailed instructions for shuffling and serial-numbering the registration cards of 17,000,000 young men who enrolled for the lottery last week.

Enough numbers, from one upwards, will be drawn in the lottery to cover the largest number of registrants in any one local board area, and men will be called to service in the order in which their numbers are drawn, unless deferred.

While hastening lottery arrangements, national headquarters can speed that, in co-operation with the Army's surgeon-general, it would collect statistics on the health of draft-age men to be used as another weapon against disease.

Wor'd War physical examination records were examined only as to major defects, but the 1940 plan will record both major and secondary defects found in potential soldiers.

RECORD INDEXED

The record will be cross-indexed in such a way as to give medical and public health authorities a complete picture of the extent of any disease or defect among men of any race in any county or state in the nation.

Every registrant examined will take a blood test for syphilis. The two major defects of each man examined will be listed on a card, whether or not he is accepted for service, and will form the basis of a statistical study of disease in a representative cross-section of the nation's young men.

GLASGOW BLAST KILLS 10

GLASGOW, Oct. 24 (AP) — Ten persons were reported killed today in an explosion which wrecked a big starch factory in the heart of the city. Twenty-eight workers were taken to hospitals suffering from burns and other injuries.

Connecticut Draft Buttons Worn as Fraternity Pins

HARTFORD, Oct. 24 (AP)—Connecticut young men who registered for the draft have found the buttons distributed to them by the state a handy substitute for fraternity pins.

The state joint executive defense committee has ruled that the buttons may be worn by the draftees' women friends without violating any law.

Connecticut was believed to have been the only state distributing an insignia to registrants under the Selective Military Service Act.

AXIS SEEN IN PEACE BID TO BRITAIN VIA PETAIN

whereby the Vichy government would give the Axis powers use of air and naval bases in Africa, Syria and unoccupied France in return for certain concessions.

WANTS SPAIN BASES

At the same time reports reaching diplomatic quarters indicated that one of the subjects discussed by Hitler and Franco was the possible use of Spanish ports and airfields in the Atlantic and the Canary Islands as a springboard for Nazi attacks on Britain's south Atlantic trade.

These sources envisioned a campaign in which Italy and Spain would attempt to seize Gibraltar and smash Britain's power in the Mediterranean while Germany and Spain struck at Britain's trade with South America as well as her sea link with India by way of the Cape of Good Hope.

Reports reaching diplomatic sources from Vichy, France, today said Premier Marshal Phillipe Petain with two aides and the minister of justice, had left Vichy for Paris. It was believed he was going to join Vice-Premier Laval to sign a new French-German agreement.

Fascist quarters forecast that important decisions designed to restore to Spain a position of power in the Mediterranean would result from Adolf Hitler's meeting with Franco.

In the absence of more specific information, foreign observers interpreted this as meaning Spain's early entrance into the European war preliminary to an Axis attack on the British stronghold of Gibraltar.—Editor's note.

STRATEGIC BASES

The bases involved in the agreement reported now under consideration by the French government are strategically situated for an Axis offensive in the Mediterranean.

The agreement, which would supersede the existing armistice terms, would make the French fleet responsible for defense of the naval bases but would not otherwise involve its use by the Axis powers for war against Britain, these sources declared.

In return, it was said, Germany would release all French war prisoners and would move the frontier of the area of France unoccupied by German forces northward from Tours and the Swiss frontier to the Seine river.

Paris, which straddles the Seine, would be placed under a special regime, with part of the city ruled by the government of Premier Philippe Petain and part by German authorities, it was said.

The naval bases which would fall to the Axis under the projected agreement were described as Dakar, capital of French West Africa; Toulon, on France's Mediterranean coast; Casablanca, in French Morocco, and Bizerte, in Tunisia.

Air bases would be given the Axis in north Africa and Syria—strategically situated for a possible assault on Egypt and the near East.

GIBRALTAR ATTACK SEEN

Adding significance to the reported French-German agreement were Rome dispatches quoting Fascists as predicting that important decisions designed to restore Spain to a position of importance in the Mediterranean would grow out of yesterday's conference between Adolf Hitler and Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

French sources said one argument used by the Germans in an attempt to obtain France's co-operation was that the conquered republic might starve this winter unless the British blockade were broken.

These sources also suggested Hitler might have used similar arguments to try to persuade Spain to accede to Axis desires.

Before Hitler talked with Franco it was reported the Spanish leader was reluctant to drag his country into the war by making it a party to a drive against Gibraltar, despite Spain's long-cherished desires to regain this stronghold.

Pact With Franco New Axis Plot on Britain

MADRID, Oct. 24 (AP)—A secret conference between Adolf Hitler and Generalissimo Francisco Franco opened the way today for momentous developments in which Spain as well as France appeared destined to play important roles in Axis plans to crush Britain and establish a new order in Europe.

Madrid buzzed with rumors as diplomatic circles awaited the outcome of the meeting yesterday on the French-Spanish border where, most observers believed, the two statesmen seated in concrete fashion a friendship which began when Hitler came to the aid of Franco's cause during the Spanish Civil war.

Official Spanish quarters were silent on the talks, but DNB, the official German news agency, reported the conference had ended last night and that Franco was on his way to Madrid. Hitler's destination remained uncertain.

It generally was believed here that Hitler's meeting with Franco was closely related to his talk Tuesday with Vice-Premier Pierre Laval of France—a view that was strengthened by the prominence the Spanish press gave to the latter conference.

Some neutral observers believed the two meetings presaged a possible shift of the main theater of war to the Mediterranean with emphasis upon Gibraltar, the British stronghold over which Spain long has desired to gain control.

Also involved, these observers believed, were plans to combat activities of the "free French" forces of Gen. Charles de Gaulle in Africa—notably in French Morocco, in which Spain also has a keen interest.

The meeting between Hitler and Franco, held in a railway car at the French border between Hendaye and Irun, was steeped in secrecy.

VICHY, France, Oct. 24 (AP)—Vice Premier Pierre Laval returned to Paris today from Vichy with Premier Petain's answer to Adolf Hitler's proposals for a French-German rapprochement.

Neutrals Seek Peace Between China, Japan

TOKYO, Oct. 24 (AP)—Neutral representatives have extended feelers directed toward negotiating a peace in the three-year-old Japanese conflict with China, apparently well grounded reports said today.

Influential Chinese unconnected with either the Chungking (Chinese Nationalist) or the Nanking (Japanese sponsored) regimes were understood to have contacted Japanese first in Hongkong and later in Tokyo to sound the possibilities of ending the conflict.

There were indications Japan still is willing to employ Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye's statement of Dec. 12, 1938, as a basis for possible negotiations.

In this statement, the prince promised that Japan would respect Chinese sovereignty, discuss abolition of extra-territoriality and would not demand either territory or indemnity of China. In return the statement said, Japan would ask Chinese economic and political co-operation.

Diplomatic sources in London reported yesterday the Japanese had offered new terms including demilitarization of the Yangtze delta; formation of an autonomous state of five north China provinces under Chinese sovereignty but with Japan holding full economic control; recognition by China of the independence of Manchoukuo, and establishment of Japanese concessions in all Chinese ports.—Editor's note.

A broadcast by Domei, the Japanese news agency, said Gen. Nobuyuki Abe, former premier of Japan and now "special envoy to China," sailed from Shanghai today for Japan after reaching an agreement with the Japanese-dominated Nanking regime of Wang Ching-Wei.

Abe, the broadcast said, had "exchanged 'notes verables' with Wang Ching-Wei confirming an understanding reached on a draft treaty."

TREATY SOUGHT

The Japanese have fostered the Nanking regime with the apparent purpose of concluding a peace treaty with it and thereafter insisting that the war with China is ended and Chiang Kai-Shek merely a Chinese rebel.

Official Chinese quarters in Hongkong said today they knew nothing about the reported offer of peace terms and asserted rumors of peace offers had been spread regularly, mostly as feelers, by the Japanese. These quarters said China, as repeatedly emphasized by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, never would agree to any peace involving a sacrifice of her political or territorial integrity.—Editor's note.

progressive destruction of the British empire by constituting herself heiress to the positions and riches which formerly formed a part of British power."

He said there is no question that the United States "is floating in gold" and could perform miracles in rearmament.

"But there is a question whether the necessary national spirit such as has been created in Italy and Germany will accompany this military preparation," Gayda continued.

"There is a question also whether the program of 'adequate defense' is not merely a conventional mask hiding a deliberate plan of aggression."

9 HITLER, DUCE TOPICS

The United States is the only sector where England still has good cards to play, Appelius wrote. He added the enigmatic statement that in this sector the "Axis has not gone to war, limiting itself to non-belligerency."

Appelius indicated the situations regarding Spain and Russia and the self-imposed limitation of the Axis in its "non-belligerency" toward the United States were among nine questions undoubtedly reviewed by Mussolini and Hitler at Brenner Pass.

The nine "zones," Appelius indicated, were:

The siege of England, the submarine blockade, fight for control of the route to India, the Far East, the diplomatic front, expansion of the revolution (Nazi and Fascist), organization of the "New Europe," Spanish solidarity, and neighborliness with Russia.

President, Hull In Conference

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (INS)—The White House today announced that President Roosevelt, after examining official dispatches from overseas, had summoned Secretary of State Hull for a conference.

Asked if Mr. Roosevelt considered the dispatches as indicative of a critical situation, Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early replied enigmatically that "you will have to look both to the left and to the right." He declined to elaborate.

PARLIAMENT IN SECRET SESSION

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP) The baffling and controversial questions of Britain's defenses against Hitler's air offensive were debated today by the two Houses of Parliament in secret sessions.

Commons went into closed session after Clement R. Attlee, lord privy seal, had told a questioner it was "premature" to approach the United States and Soviet Russia concerning post-war collaboration on relief, reconstruction and international cooperation.

He also outlined the functions of the new ministry of works and public buildings headed by Sir John Reith, which is to direct plans for extensive government building.

FLAY GLORIOUS TRAGEDY

Bitter questioning was provoked in Commons over the loss of the aircraft carrier Glorious with 1204 officers and men off Narvik, Norway, last June.

Questioners demanded to know why "no adequate steps were taken to rescue many hundreds of survivors who remained 48 hours afloat on rafts.

Labor's increasingly critical attitude toward the government was reflected in questions led by Richard Rapier Stokes and Charles G. Ammon, Laborites, who demanded it was announced today.

Sir Victor Warrender, financial secretary of the admiralty, acknowledged that British aircraft and ships passed close to the rafts from the Glorious, but "unfortunately did not see them."

DENIES ANY NEGLECT

Sir Victor said a court of inquiry had been instituted, but that since Capt. Guy D'Oyly Hughes of the Glorious went down with his ship "much of what happened must of necessity remain a mystery."

Sir Victor declared he took "the strongest possible exception" to any suggestion of neglect on the part of the admiralty or of any flag officer, adding that "owing to some completely inexplicable cause, no signal by the Glorious was intercepted."

Sir Archibald Southby, Conservative, asked if it were not time to make public the name of the officer "responsible" for the disaster, but his question went unanswered

He Appeals $1 Fine To Uphold Principle

A one dollar fine isn't much; it's the principle of the thing, Michael Moriarty, Cambridge tavern proprietor, said today in appealing a fine of $1 ordered by Judge Arthur P. Stone after being found guilty of violating a rule that retail stores be closed from 7 a. m. to 1 p. m. on Columbus Day.

New Spy Epic For Trans-Lux

"Spy Bureau," new Film Alliance of the United States presentation, co-starring Marta Labarr and Charles Oliver, comes to the Trans-Lux screen tomorrow.

The story, an original one by Charles Robert Dumas, is concerned directly with the perilous spy assignments of Erna Fleider, who is in the service of the German government, and Paul Benoit, who pledges his allegiance and faith to the French war forces. It is the story of a spy sent out to trap a spy and is said to uncover secrets never before revealed in connection with the foreign secret service.

The co-feature, "Hell Below," starring Robert Montgomery, Robert Young and Walter Huston, is the story of undersea sailors in the United States navy and how they do their duty in time of war.

Old Chaplin Hit In Ballyhoo Role

The Charlie Chaplin oldie of 20 years agone is being used to ballyhoo his long-awaited new film, "The Great Dictator," which comes to Loew's State and Orpheum screens next Thursday . . . Variety reports that a Detroit movie house showing "The Paperhanger," one of the great pantomimist's most famous two-reelers, with new synchronization and titles

"I'm not always going to be a paperhanger," one prophetic subtitle, has Chaplin saying; "I'm studying to be a dictator."

Joe E. Brown, due at the Plymouth Nov. 4 in Ring Lardner's famous comedy, "Elmer the Great," is one of the country's best-known baseball fans . . . He has been offered a tidy sum by the National Baseball Museum in Cooperstown, N. Y., for what is probably the greatest personal collection of baseball trophies in the United States . . . Those include the uniform worn by Ty Cobb in his last game in 1925, a baseball autographed by the late King George V of England when he saw his only ball game between the Giants and the White Sox in London in 1914, the uniform worn by Dizzy Dean in the World Series of 1934, the bat used by J. Honus (Hans) Wagner, famous Pittsburgh slugger from 1900 to 1914, and dozens of other caps, uniforms and baseballs identified with outstanding World Series.

BEACON'S FILMS

"Typhoon," with Dorothy Lamour and Robert Preston, and "Sandy Is A Lady," starring Baby Sandy with Nan Grey, are to be seen on the Beacon screen through Saturday.

Gangster Quarrel Before Killing Bared

Testimony was given in municipal court today that Salvatore Carisse, alias Caresi, had quarreled bitterly and then had been pushed out of a West End drug store five minutes before he was slain on Oct. 8.

The man with whom Carisse, a North End racketeer, quarreled and who pushed him out of the store, was Alfred Lanza, the court was told. Lanza is accused of "The Big Student's" slaying and the hearing was to determine if the case would go to the grand jury.

Edward Tierney, employed in the store, an all-night pharmacy in Hale st., said that within a few minutes of the time he heard shots, Lanza returned and told him:

"Mind your own business now! Keep your mouth shut!"

Then, said Tierney, Lanza told him he was closing up the store and Tierney could go home. Tierney was surprised at that, he said, because he was still supposed to be working.

The witness testified that "The Big Student" had paid three visits to the drugstore in the interval of three or four hours before he was shot with two fatal wounds, at Hale and Green sts.

The first time, said Tierney, Carisse got some cigarettes and afterward Lanza remarked he had got them back from Carisse.

In another hour or so, Carisse returned, the witness said, and Lanza and he had a discussion.

The third time Carisse came back there were more words and then Lanza went into the back of the store, came out front again and pushed Carisse out the door, said Tierney.

Shortly afterwards, the witness related, he heard three reports that sounded like automobile backfire and then Lanza came back into the store.

The hearing is continuing.

This Check Sheet, together with the other five Check Sheets appearing from Monday, October 21, to Saturday, October 26, inclusive, should be brought or mailed to the Game of Check, Box 2337, Boston Record-American, Boston, Mass., before midnight, Saturday, November 2, together with 10c in coin. Contestants will receive a special Quiz Booklet at the conclusion of the Contest.

YOU CAN CATCH UP EASILY! COUPON BELOW BRINGS YOU ALL PREVIOUS QUESTION-CARTOONS FREE!

GREAT CASH SUMS are waiting to be won! First Prize is $10,000.00! Second Prize is $2,000.00! Third Prize is $1,000.00! 97 other prizes! Any one of these awards can become YOURS!

Although this is the tenth day of the contest, you can still get into the game and win. First, mail the coupon at the bottom of the page. It brings you all previous question-cartoons to date—namely, Check Sheets Nos. 1 through 9.

SIX CHECK SHEETS EACH WEEK

From Monday through Saturday of each week, six Check Sheets appear. The six Check Sheets for each week are to be submitted within the following week—with your answer to each question CHECKED.

Look at Check Sheet No. 10 at the left. It contains three question-cartoons and under each question, four suggested answers, one of which is the correct answer. That will be the case in each Check Sheet to appear in the Record and American during this contest, and it will be your job simply to CHECK the answer you consider correct to each question.

DIME MUST ACCOMPANY EACH SERIES

Under the rules, 10 cents in coin must be sent with each series of six Check Sheets in order to qualify your answers for a prize. At the conclusion of the contest contestants will receive an absorbing Quiz Booklet.

NEATNESS WILL NOT COUNT, so there's no need to decorate your submissions.

While you're waiting for the previous Check Sheets in response to mailing the coupon below, clip and save today's Check Sheet No. 10. Continue by getting Check Sheet No. 11 in tomorrow's Record or American; No. 12 (completing the Second Series) on Saturday; No. 13 on Monday, etc.

THE RULES

1—The Boston Record American GAME OF CHECK is open to all persons living in the New England States. However, no employes of the Boston Record, the Boston American or Sunday Advertiser, members of their families, nor any newspaper dealers and carriers who deliver the Boston Record, the Boston American or Sunday Advertiser, nor any person acting as a proxy for another, nor any person who has won $500 or more in any contest, may win a prize.

2—Beginning Monday, October 14, 1940, a check sheet will be published each weekday in the Boston American and the Boston Record. Each check sheet will contain three cartoon questions. Four and only four suggested answers will be printed under each cartoon question used in the daily check sheets. One and only one of these suggested answers is the correct answer to the question appearing above. The six check sheets published during each week will constitute a series. There will be fifteen series. Answers to each week's series of cartoon questions should be brought or mailed to the Contest Editor, P. O. Box 2337, c o the Boston Record-American Game of Check. Answers for each week's series should be submitted within the week after that series appears in the Boston Record and the Boston American.

3—One hundred prizes will be awarded by the Boston Record-American in accordance with the published schedule of prizes, to those 100 contestants who, by their answers, achieve the 100 highest scores. A check sheet will not be judged as a unit—each and every question will be judged separately. Thus, a contestant will get credit for each question correctly answered. No contestant may win more than one prize. Neatness does not count. Do not decorate your answers.

4—In case two or more contestants are tied for a certain prize, just what particular prize each contestant may be entitled to will be determined by submitting to each tied contestant a set of tie-breaking questions, and, if necessary, a second, third, or fourth set of tie-breaking questions. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of the highest scores achieved by contestants, in accordance with the instructions and scoring regulations governing the solution of such tie-breaking questions. At the discretion of the Boston Record and the Boston American, tied contestants may be required to work the tie-breaking questions, without assistance in the offices of the Boston Record or the Boston American. In case of final ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

5—In order to qualify for a prize, contestants are required to accompany each weekly series of Check Sheets with a remittance of 10c in coin. An individual file will be set up for each qualified contestant and each weekly set of answers duly filed therein. After the contest closes, each individual file will be duly judged.

To those contestants who complete the 15 weekly series of check sheets and who in all other ways conform to the rules of the contest, the Boston Record-American will present a special quiz booklet created by Harold Hart, author of the famous quiz volume, "Invitation to Fun."

6—Any person, by entering this contest understands, that it is a contest of individual effort, and agrees to abide by and accept as final the decision of the Boston Record-American on all matters pertaining this contest, including among others the qualifications of contestants, their disqualification at any time before or after January 27th, the closing date, for any cause deemed necessary, the applications of the rules, the establishment of time limitations, the judging of answers, the scoring of answers, and the interpretation of such instructions (governing individual questions) as may be announced by the officials of the Contest. By entering this contest, participants agree that their answers become the property of the Boston Record-American and will not be returned.

7—Entries that are not signed by name will not be considered eligible for prizes nor will any claims to the ownership of such entries be recognized. Entries which are illegible will not be considered. Not more than one prize will be awarded to members of any one immediate family. The Boston Record American will not be responsible for entries or communications lost or unduly delayed either from the contestant to the Boston Record-American Contest Editor or from the Boston Record-American to the contestant.

Halloween Party Tips

By MARTHA LEE

When hobgoblins skulk in the Halloween shadows and witches soar on their broomsticks, it's high time for an informal party with properly spooky decorations.

The easiest and most popular technique for feasting on All Saints' Eve is to spread a table with sandwich makings flanked by generously stocked cheese trays and let the guests help themselves. With mugs of beer and cider, serve tawny Leiderkranz cheese and wedges of highly flavored Camembert and mild Brie. Arrange rye and pumpernickel bread and different varieties of crackers around the edges of the tray.

The war hasn't interfered with supplies of these famous dessert cheeses. Your neighborhood grocery has ample stocks of delicious Camembert at low prices with made-in-America labels, and Liederkranz is the only internationally famous cheese invented in America. If you want to observe continental cheese etiquette you'll serve this cheese in generous quantities with a cheese knife and let each guest choose his own portion.

Halloween is a particularly appealing festival day for hostesses on a budget because properly spooky decorations can be achieved so thriftily. For a novelty you might cut your jack-o'-lanterns from large red apples, insert lighted candles and set them in a ghostly cavalcade on your cheese tray.

Whether your Halloween party is a buffet dinner or a midnight spread, you'll be sure to win special applause from the male contingent if you provide the makings for Liederkranz cheese and corned beef sandwiches.

CHEESE AND CORNED BEEF SANDWICH

1½ cups minced cooked corned beef.
3 tbsp. horseradish
1 tbsp. mustard
6 slices bread
1 pkg. Liederkranz cheese

Combine corned beef, horseradish and mustard. Spread on slices of bread. Cover with thin slices of cheese. Place in hot oven (400 deg. F.) about 10 minutes until cheese is melted. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

CHEESE AND ONION SANDWICH SPREAD

1 pkg. Liederkranz cheese
2 tbsp. beer
2 tbsp. finely minced onion

Mash cheese with a fork until soft and smooth. Add beer gradually and blend to a smooth paste. Fold in onion. Keep in tightly covered jar in refrigerator. Use as a sandwich spread on rye bread or spread on crisp crackers as an appetizer. May also be used as a stuffing for celery.

CHEESE AND CHOPPED DILL PICKLE SANDWICHES

Camembert cheese
Rye bread
Butter
Chopped dill pickle
Lettuce
Spread a thin slice of rye bread with butter and cheese. Over the cheese spread a layer of chopped dill pickle. Cover with another slice of buttered bread.

CHEESE AND RELISH SANDWICHES

Camembert cheese
Rye or pumpernickel bread
Butter
India or sweet relish
Cover a slice of rye or pumpernickel bread with butter and then with thin slices of cheese. Spread with a thin layer of India or sweet relish. Cover with another slice of buttered bread.

JACK-O'-LANTERNS made of big rosy apples make a spooky guard of honor to this Halloween cheese tray. Arrange rye or pumpernickel bread and different types of crackers on the cheese tray, too.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

LETTERS. Scores . . . hundreds . . . thousands of them . . . piled on my desk . . . waiting for me every morning. Waiting to weep over America's ruin. America's ruin?

MY EYE! Who told you America was going to be ruined? Who told you America was going to be overrun by Hitler's Hordes?

YOUR OWN FEAR TOLD YOU.

You've been reading a lot of nightmares—and they've gotten your goat.

You've been reading about "mechanized warfare" . . . Stuka bombers . . . "blitzkriegs" and "breadbaskets." You've been seeing skies darkened with death-dealing planes. Hideous things to see. Blasting things to know.

Don't let them get you down! Don't let yourself believe that these are the final or the determining things. They're not!

For there's something more powerful in life than Blitzkriegs or Breadbaskets or Stuka Bombers. There's something more invincible than Nazi will.

And that's the spirit of free, proud men!

Hitler and Mussolini do not know what that spirit is. They are not free men themselves. They are the slaves of their own obsessions . . . the victims of their own prejudices.

And, far less, do their conscripted armies know what pride or freedom is. Once those soldiers were individual men . . . with individual ideas and desires but that was long ago.

They are not free men now. They are not even men. They are robots. For all essential purposes, they might as well be a bunch of spitballs.

But that does not imply that we, as yet, are a bunch of spitballs . . . or regiments of robots.

We have still the right to tell Herr Hitler to go skin a grape.

For there's something in us which no bombs or blitzkriegs or breadbaskets can ever lick. There's something in us which no subtle, sneering propaganda can ever penetrate.

THERE'S THE ONE-AND-ONLY, ORIGINAL, AMERICAN SPIRIT!

THERE'S the spirit which arose, full-fledged, against the tyranny of an insane king and brought us wrung but rejoicing, to a stern and rockbound coast. There's the spirit which hurled the tea into Boston Harbor and defied the horror of Valley Forge . . . And, later, hurled its strength along that skull-lined Covered Wagon Trail.

It flows in us all, that spirit. It flames in us all, like the Sacred Host! We may forget it, sometimes, in the flush of pleasure . . . in the pride of prosperity. But when the night shuts down and the way grows dark, WE REMEMBER! We remember—and, through the shadows—we slip our hands into God's.

For He has been our partner all the way. No matter how foolish we have been . . . no matter how weak and wasteful . . . how cruel and cowardly . . . we have walked with Him. For, weak as we were, we served His purpose . . . we shared His dream. And He will not leave us now.

Skin Clearing Cream That Does Miraculous Things

By ARLINE GOULD

LOOKING FOR romantic yesterdays . . . is apt to be the lot of the girl who doesn't keep her skin's defenses in top-notch form against discoloring grime and dryness . . . The look of a 16-year-old skin is one of clarity and clear color . . . and you can keep it if you include in your Must routine a wonderful skin clearing cream.

It isn't just an end-of-summer affair, though it's wonderful for clearing up the last traces of tan. It's your preventive against damage done by gritty soot. It accomplishes the work of a masque, which is clearing and softening, even while you use it as a cleansing cream!

This skin clearing cream is available for the first time in its history in a $1 size . . . it was once a good deal more.

Stimulating from within as well as on the surface tissues is perhaps one secret of its efficacy. And in rousing your skin from deep within, the result is a clearer, smoother complexion.

It's delectable to see and touch . . . and in it are also gentle, herbal whitening agents . . . these are your defenses against discolorations which give a look of age, against blackheads and occasional blemishes.

Use it at night and in the morning, as you would any cleansing cream. And if you can manage it, once during the daytime as well. It isn't often . . . in fact it's never . . . that you can find such a thorough corrective cosmetic embodied in such a form that it may be used as cheaply as a cleansing cream . . . something that can do so many miraculous things for your skin.

If you'd like to learn all about this skin clearing cream, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, weekdays except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

AL SMITH BLAMES ROOSEVELT FOR 'SMEAR' CAMPAIGN

Missile-Hurlers Live on U.S. Cash

CLASS HATRED FLARES

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—Responsibility for the smear-campaign and the egg-throwing against Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential candidate, has been laid squarely upon President Roosevelt by Alfred E. Smith.

Smith, Democratic candidate for President in 1928, charged in a speech in Brooklyn last night that "the occupant of the White House" was the greatest offender in the appeals to class hatred and prejudice responsible for the crowd outbursts.

"Tell me what has happened to this country," demanded Smith, "that a lovely American lady like Mrs. Willkie cannot be in the company of her husband in a crusade to save this country without being spattered with eggs and having her clothing destroyed.

"I will tell you what it is. It is the appeal to prejudice, the appeal to bigotry, the setting up of class against class that has emanated for the last 7½ years from the New Deal, and the chief apostle, the occupant of the White House, is himself the greatest offender."

Smith, making the first of a series of speeches in support of the Willkie candidacy, attacked the "doctrine of indispensability" and styled the anti-third term tradition one of the fundamental principles of the nation.

He talked before a tight-packed and frequently applauding audience and recalled that exactly eight years ago he had stood on the same platform advocating the election of the "then Democratic" candidate for the Presidency.

Chicagoans Deplore Egg Attack on Willkie, Wife

CHICAGO, Oct 24 - The smear and vilification campaign against Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential candidate, had everybody apologizing today in Chicago for this city's part in the abuse of the candidate and his wife.

Again in Chicago a government employe, supported by taxpayers' money, was the agent in the class hatred campaign of which, it was charged in New York by Alfred E. Smith, "the occupant of the White House is the chief apostle."

In Detroit, Miss Doris La Rue, 31, who hurled a five-pound waste basket from her 18th floor hotel room into a Willkie crowd, seriously injuring a girl, has resigned her job with the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

In Chicago, Charles L. Mulrain, 53-year-old stationary engineer for a relief shelter, is held on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon on Candidate and Mrs. Willkie in the throwing of two dozen eggs, one of which struck Willkie and one his wife.

Today Mulrain, a former ball player with an accurate arm, apologized for his act, said he was sorry and excused himself on the ground that he had taken 10 beers—though he didn't say whether he had bought the eggs before the beers.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly and other Chicago Democratic officials rushed hastily into print to deplore the attack.

The Chicago Daily Times, under the heading, "It Shouldn't Happen Here," ran on the front page of all its editions a picture of Willkie, his face and shoulders splattered with egg. The caption in this newspaper, which is supporting Roosevelt, added:

"To which all Chicagoans, outraged by such an act as the one pictured, will subscribe whole-heartedly, mindful of the fact there is no place for hooliganism in the democratic system.

"Unanimous public sentiment is: 'Deepest apologies to you, Mr. Willkie. The whole town is genuinely sorry and ashamed for the action of this single one of its 3,500,000 citizens.'—The Editor."

Mayor Kelly and the other Chicago Democratic officials were a bit more brief, with the mayor, as spokesman, stating:

"This was done by an illegitimate child of Chicago. Real Chicagoans are not built that way.

"Not only the representative of a great political party, but every person visiting here should have the respect of Chicago citizens."

The smear campaign has had results also in other cities, where propaganda-inflamed individuals have made attacks directed upon the Republican candidate.

In Pontiac, Mich., a police court judge ordered "a good, old-fashioned whipping" for three youths who threw eggs at the Willkie party.

Two eggs were hurled at Willkie in Evansville, Ind., but sailed over the head of the nominee and broke on the pavement beyond.

At St. Paul, Minn., rotten tomatoes, mushy apples and decaying squashes were smeared over the south steps of Minnesota's Capitol at the spot from which Willkie spoke.

And in Boston, Willkie's vest was grazed by overripe fruit thrown at him as the Willkie party passed through a suburban square.

Sorry Now

Relief Worker Charles L. Mulrain of Chicago answered Willkie's arguments the only way he knew how . . . with eggs. He's jailed and says he's sorry . . . but his act remains an example of class hatred scored by Al Smith last night.

Egg Target Again—This time a Chicago relief worker, paid with taxpayers' money, hurled eggs at Wendell Willkie, Republican candidate for President . . . the New York Journal-American says editorially under the picture:

"Here you see the righteous wrath of Wendell L. Willkie as he was forcefully restrained from reaching the assailant who hit him with an egg as he was about to leave Chicago. The egg-throwing is the type of rowdyism that Mr. Willkie has been subjected to in various districts, such as this one controlled by Boss Kelly and his satellite Pat Nash, where the doctrines of class hatred and 'sit-down' strike lawlessness as preached or condoned by the New Deal have had their greatest effect. Copyright Chicago Times, Inc., from Wide World."

Class Hatred

Al Smith, former Governor of New York, denounces the rise of class hatred in America at an address in Brooklyn . . . and calls President Roosevelt the chief apostle of the smear campaign that has led to egg throwing.

Drops Basket

Doris La Rue, 31-year old government employe sent another girl to a hospital when she dropped a metal basket "in a spirit of fun" from her 18th floor room in Detroit during Willkie's visit to Detroit.

Victim of Disorder—Out of the disorder that heralded Willkie's visit to Detroit, Betty Wilson, 19, emerged with a crushed skull . . . victim of a wildly thrown basket . . . sufferer in Roosevelt's campaign of class hatred.

THE NEW YORK TIMES, a consistent supporter of President Roosevelt up to the time of his decision to break tradition and seek a third consecutive term, effectively answers Mr. Roosevelt's re-election plea, delivered Wednesday night in Philadelphia's Convention Hall.

In a vigorous, straight-shooting editorial, titled, "Mr. Roosevelt in Rebuttal," the Times says:

"Mr. Roosevelt's first speech last night in open advocacy of his wish for a third term was essentially a rebuttal of charges which have been brought against his Administration. To that he was entitled. Certain extravagant statements have been made by Republican speakers in this campaign, and it is proper that Mr. Roosevelt should reply to these statements and set forth his own version of the facts in the case as he sees them.

"There remain, however, entirely proper questions and entirely legitimate and important charges to which Mr. Roosevelt's first campaign speech supplies no answer.

"IN THE FIELD of national defense, why has the Defense Commission remained merely an 'advisory' commission, unable on its own authority to cut the endless red tape in Washington?

"Why is the whole vast, complex business of defense still channelized across a single desk in the White House?

"And why, if the President, as he said last night, saw so clearly the present dangers to this country, was he willing to have Congress adjourn in early June, before a single one of the chief defense measures on which we now rely—the Selective Military Service Bill, the Two-Ocean Navy Bill and the bill making vital funds available for the Army—had yet been enacted into law?

"In the field of fiscal policy, what evidence has Mr. Roosevelt to offer in behalf of his claim that 'as citizen income rises, let us not forget that government expenditures will go down'?

"What defense can he make of the fantastic silver policy which has enriched a few mine owners at the cost of purchasing more than two billion ounces of a metal for which the government has no earthly use?

"What plain answer is there to the charge that Mr. Roosevelt himself made in 1932—'If, like a spendthrift, a nation throws all caution to the winds and is willing to make no sacrifice at all in spending, it is on the road to bankruptcy'?

"WHERE IS THE DEFENSE of the Supreme Court packing plan of 1937? And where, in the field of foreign policy, is the reaffirmation of Mr. Roosevelt's faith in his own policies—policies which many of us were glad to support?

"Where is the 'quarantine' for international aggressors?

"Where are the 'methods short of war' to make our policies effective?

"Where is the 'full speed ahead' with aid to Britain?

"It is an interesting fact that at a time when Mr. Willkie is hammering away, day after day, on the need of greater aid to the democracy which is now holding precariously the front line of our defenses Mr. Roosevelt should not even refer to that question in his first 'political' speech of the campaign.

"Is this a sign that, on the eve of the election, Mr. Roosevelt favors the same soft-pedaling of the aid-for-Britain issue which was so clearly revealed in the keynote speeches at the Democratic National Convention, speeches which were absolutely mute upon that question?

"THERE IS ONE particularly noteworthy ommission in this Philadelphia address.

"No mention whatever is made of an issue of immense importance to a very great number of Americans—the issue of the third term.

"Not a single argument is advanced to prove that some of our greatest Presidents were wrong in believing the tradition against a third term to be an essential safeguard of the democratic system.

"No explanation is offered of why the President, who originally intended in his own words 'to announce clearly and simply' that 'under no circumstances would he accept re-election,' ultimately announced merely that he 'had no wish to be a candidate again'—a very different statement."

DRAFTEES' WIVES and sweethearts are not going to be haunted by the green-eyed monster called Jealousy, says the Associated Press.

The one hundred hostesses who will preside over service clubs for the conscription-expanded Army won't be "spring chickens."

Mature women will get the top jobs. Their ages will range from thirty to fifty years.

The inference is that women who have passed the three-decade milestone are not so irresistibly attractive to rookies as girls in their teens and twenties.

This is not always the case, although we are very sure that Army hostesses will not try to "vamp" recruits or make them forget the girls they left behind.

HAVE YOU devoted any time to the study of pogonotomy, commonly referred to as shaving? The Mellon Institute of Pittsburgh conducted a four-year investigation with officially stated object: "To ascertain the factors involved in obtaining a satisfactory shave." Truly a noble experiment. Results of this are in an American Medical Association publication, "Factors Involved in Satisfactory Shaving." Principal factors, briefly stated, are a sharp blade, properly softened hair and holding the razor at the proper angle, i. e., between 28 and 32 degrees. Do not mention one thing they should have: i. e. a great aid to getting a good shave is to rub olive oil on your face before applying the lather.

BILLIE BURKE APPLIES FILM MAKE-UP.

JIM THORPE, second best football player of all time, is part Irish and part Indian. Once faced a team which had among its players Knute Rockne, Gus Dorais, Jock Sutherland, Tiny Thornhill and Lou Little. This was the Massion, O., professional team of 1919. Jim was playing for Canton, O., and he kicked a field goal from the 52-yard line to beat the all star aggregation aforementioned by a score of 3 to 0. Thorpe, who has four youngsters, says he doesn't want any of them to play football. "It's a much too dangerous game," says he . . . Walter Howey, once of Chicago, now of Boston, is one of America's greatest and most colorful newspaper men. There will be no dissent to this claim and much distinguished approval. In addition to his journalistic ability, Walter is something of a man of science, being an expert in sound film photography. He is also New England's proudest father of a three-year-old son.

"AS FAR BACK as 1923 Norma Shearer was a film star. No woman now active in films can say the same," states a film columnist. How about Billie Burke who starred in a picture titled "Peggy" back in 1916? . . . "So women carry a lot of things in their handbags," my girl friend observed this morning as I emptied my pockets preparatory to sending my elegant gray suit to be pressed. As she counted 37 things I had taken from my pockets I was forced to maintain silence. She certainly had me there.

"YOU SAY to remember the Dachshund is of Egyptian origin," writes a Boston client. "I don't care of what origin my dachshund is or where he was born, I would love him just the same. Suppose he was even born in Berlin, could he help it?"

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

-:- MY DAY

HYDE PARK, Oct. 24—The two hours I spent at the N. Y. Herald-Tribune forum Tuesday afternoon were most interesting, but I am troubled by the impression that people are thinking and talking today as though everything being done is in preparation for going to war. I suppose different people would explain the cause for this state of mind in different ways.

The reason seems immaterial to me. The important thing is that we should stop allowing our thoughts to run along this line. Instead, we should say: "We are not only building an impregnable defense against any attack from without or within, but we hope to discourage all thought of attack from any source."

TUESDAY evening, Mrs. Eliot Pratt and I gave a dinner for "Work Camps in America" at which Mr. Algernon G. Black, presided and Mr. Kenneth Holland of the American Youth Commission spoke. Both of them have been much interested in the work camp idea for some time and feel that a private organization, through experimental work, might develop some camp methods which would be valuable in the CCC camps and the NYA resident projects.

The idea in back of the work camp is that work in itself is valuable from the educational point of view. Work and education, particularly where these college-age young people are concerned, is a valuable combination, and the setting of these work camps is peculiarly happy for the development of real understanding of democracy.

The students govern themselves, but a faculty is in attendance and the idea of inspiring youth to study and live democratically is present in everybody's mind.

Ever since I visited the first camp at West Park, across the river from here, I have been interested in the way young people reacted to the time they spent together, so the speeches from the two young campers Tuesday night were to me a very interesting part of the evening.

One other feature of these camps, which impressed me on this first visit, was the fact that the young people came from colleges all over this country. Some of them were refugee students who came from five different countries in Europe and had here their first opportunity of living really intimately with other young people in a land which was still strange, though it was to be their adopted country.

WE DROVE up the parkway yesterday morning and my brilliant colors are all gone. The more subdued and darker shades are still to be seen here and there where the leaves still cling to the trees, but many trees are bare and the signs of late autumn greet me on every hand.

EINSTEIN DOES HER HOME WORK

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—One of the Princeton neighbors of Fred. Albert Einstein has an eight-year-old daughter who made it a practice to visit the famed scientist every afternoon. After many weeks of these daily visits, the girl's mother finally went to see Einstein and apologized to him for her daughter's constant interruption of his scientific thought . . . "Oh, not at all." Einstein assured her. "I enjoy her visits very much and we get along well" . . . "Really?" asked the lady. "But what can you and a little eight-year-old girl have in common?" . . . "A great deal," Einstein explained. "I love the jelly beans she brings me—and she loves the way I do her arithmetic lessons."

DR. JAMES G. McDONALD, head of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, is the leading candidate for the presidency of CUNY. Mayor LaGuardia won't announce the appointment for several months . . . The only item delaying the sale of "Tobacco Road" to Twentieth Century-Fox is the question of screen credits . . . Col. William Donovan, who once was the Republican candidate for Governor, lectured a group of Republicans in Rochester a few days ago about their behavior. "Suppose this were a spot we had to defend against the enemy and I was your sergeant," said Wild Bill, hero of the 69th Regiment. "Suppose you thought I was undependable, inefficient and even crooked. And there was another sergeant whom you liked, but I had been assigned to you and he had not. Would you fail to defend this place against the enemy because you hated your sergeant? . . . Let's behave like Americans—and not just Republicans or Democrats."

DIST. ATTY. O'DWYER of Brooklyn revealed this story at Lindy's Saturday night: It concerns five members of Murder, Inc., who had been involved in a morals charge. The victim was a 16-year-old girl, who was so affected by her terrifying experience that any questioning about the crime might result in neurotic reaction . . . Four of these men were indicted for murder, and so this morals charge was secondary. But the fifth man—Leo Tocci, who was missing—could not be linked with homicide . . . O'Dwyer dreaded the day when Tocci would be caught, for it meant that the girl would have to appear before the Grand Jury and recite the details . . . That case, however, will never be prosecuted. Tocci was found in the Miami surf—murdered.

JEROME WEIDMAN, author of the current best seller, "Letter of Credit," was Ilka Chase's guest of honor at her "Luncheon at the Waldorf" broadcast last Saturday . . . Later these two experts of vitriol discussed the Art of the Insult. "It's getting so you can't insult anybody any more," Ilka complained. "You can't do it in your own house because you're the host. You can't do it in other people's houses because you're their guest. You can't do it if they're young because it's unfair to pick on a child. And you can't do it if they're old because that's discourteous. What's an insulting person to do? . . . "Do what I do," Weidman suggested. "Get 'em at the age of 35—in Central Park."

THE DAILY NEWS now has a girl working as copy boy, and two more are expected to be hired—as a protective measure in the event that the copy boys are drafted . . . Lady Mendl, who is over 70, has done her first decorating job since her repatriation. The former Elsie de Wolfe has decorated a suite at the St. Regis, which will be known henceforth as the "Elsie de Wolfe Suite" . . . Bunty Bacon, who was divorced from heiress "Cookie" Young, passed his physical examination Monday for enlistment in the Navy . . . When Ann Corio, the strip-teaser, was not permitted to fulfill her scheduled appearance at the British War Relief Ball in Detroit, Clifton Webb tendered her a party at another cafe.

THE "HOOPLA CIRCUIT" WON A new star today as reports flashed to New York and points west that Mitzi Green had hung up an opening-night record at Boston's Mayfair . . . The "hoopla circuit" is professional slangology for what-has-happened-to-vaudeville . . . It is a route made up of the so-called "class" cabarets in the key cities . . . Cities which once supported vaudeville theaters.

ITS A GROWN-UP MITZI on display at The Mayfair . . . She is much more curvaceous than the streamlined kid who triumphed in "Babes in Arms" and nearly put over a flop show called "Three After Three" . . . Mitzie was 20 years and one day old as of last night, so please forget our estimate of her age which made her twenty and some years in yesterday's column.

MISS GREEN'S AGE DOES not matter . . Hers will be the agelessness of a great performing artist unless something intervenes to retard a sure-shot success in maturity . . . It won't be extra poundage (about which young Miss Green is probably worrying), that can prevent her going forward to the very top . . . Because Mitzi is a fine comedienne . . Last night, mostly, she sang.

SHE SANG A MEDLEY of Irving Berlin's songs in "Louisiana Purchase" . . . And she sang Rodgers' and Hart's "The Lady Was a Tramp" . . . Also, Mitzi obliged with some "special material" cut to her measure, and giving her an opportunity to mimic Sophie Tucker, and Fannie Brice.

SHE SANG ALSO "That Old Feeling," a Lew Brown item, and did one of the choruses as George Arliss might—but never will—sing it . . . What she didn't sing was a Cole Porter song, and that should have disturbed the kid's marvelous aplomb.

LACKING A PORTER NUMBER in her current repertory might well have unnerved poor Mitzi, because a minute or so before she took the floor for the supper-show, the great Mr. Porter and a party of friends were seated almost at her feet . . . Composer Porter seemed to enjoy her immensely.

IT IS IMPORTANT to report Miss Green's triumph at The Mayfair last night, because it was her second appearance only in a nightclub . . . The other was at The Versailles in Manhattan . . . The Mayfair gambled, too . . . Mitzi is a "name" and consequently comes high . . . There could have been some doubt as to how valuable the Green name really was in the nightclub circuit . . . No doubt exists today . . . Sophie Tucker's opening-night record was cracked last night . . . Other records may go by the boards as the week wears on . . . And the "hoopla circuit" has another star to add to the very few "names" available for booking.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Out O' Boston—bound for Annapolis, the cutter Highland Light, which created a new record in the Bermuda Open Race in 1932, is sailing the bounding main to fulfill a term of Dudley Wolfe's will . . . Mr. Wolfe was killed while mountain-climbing in Northern India last year . . . He owned the Highland Light, and his will bequeathed the famous yacht to the Naval Academy at Annapolis . . . So a crew of sailors, under a lieutenant-commander, took the craft in hand at Lawley's in Neponset, and set a course for deep water . . . It would have made an interesting picture to yachtsmen who knew the Highland Light's ability to outsail the fastest yachts in the East.

'TOPPER' FILM ROLE TO BLONDELL

By Louella O. Parsons

Joan Blondell

HARTFORD, Ct., Oct. 24 Joan Blondell will be the well dressed, wisecracking "Ghost" in "Topper Returns" after closing the deal with Hal Roach today. For a while I had begun to think that this role was really out of this world. Every femme star mentioned for it seemed to disappear as completely as Thorne Smith's original heroine Connie Bennett, who has made most of the "Toppers" went to Reno for her divorce and Rosalind Russell begged off because she needed a rest.

News just as interesting about "Topper Returns" is that Joan Bennett will be in Hollywood Monday to sign for the romantic lead when and if she gets together with Hal about the way the picture is advertised. There was a grand row before when Joan objected to the exposition on "The Housekeeper's Daughter." Now she's demanding the right to pass on the copy and Hal is willing if she will agree to a retreive. Of course the two Joans will share co-starring billing.

Sanders signed his Fox contract three and a half years ago but he hasn't made a picture there since "Lancer Spy" which was filmed more than two years ago. It isn't that Darryl Zanuck hasn't appreciated George . . but other studios offered him such attractive roles it wasn't good business to turn them down. He'll play a dual role in "Uncensored" not unlike the heavy and hero of "Lancer Spy."

M-G-M IS GOING to do better by Frank Morgan than "Hullabaloo" which, judging from the reviews, won't sweep the Academy Awards this year. They've just about purchased "Vanishing Virginian," Rebecca Williams much discussed new novel, for him at a fancy price. The newspaper reviews about this book have been excellent and while I haven't had a spare moment to do any reading, it is about a Colonel Bob Yancey of the Virginia Yanceys, suh, who bosses his family of seven children to a farethee-well. The general angle is a sort of "Life With Father" below the Mason-Dixon Line.

EVENING AMERICAN, THURSDAY, OCT. 24, 1940

Willkie Rattles The Sword!

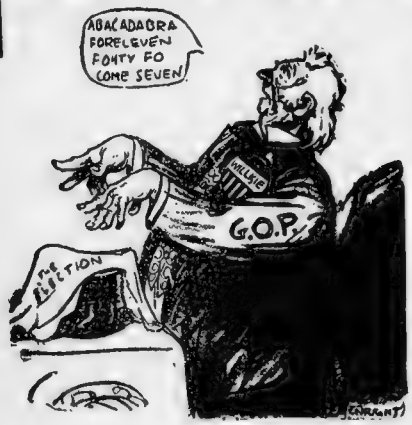
(Provided by the Democratic National Committee)

Fellow Citizens: Who said this?

"If the totalitarian states prevail, the odds are VERY SUBSTANTIAL we shall have to meet them in armed conflict."

Wendell Willkie made that statement in an interview published in the New York Times on May 5, 1940. In other words, barely a month before he was nominated for the Presidency at Philadelphia, he virtually predicted war for the United States.

We reprint this reckless, explosive statement of the Republican nominee to show the false and contemptible nature of the last minute campaign being waged by Republicans to fasten the war monger label on President Roosevelt.



Hoping for a Miracle.

The Republicans printed a column a few days ago under the deliberately misleading headline, "Willkie or War." Under the heading was a jumble of misstatements, distortions and insinuations the purpose of which was to inflame public opinion and intimidate the voters. There was a suggestion tacked on that the public should read the speeches of candidate Willkie and President Roosevelt.

We have. If there is a responsible citizen in politics who has been more active in rattling the sword than candidate Willkie, his name is undisclosed.

WILLKIE CHALLENGES HITLER

In his acceptance speech at Elwood, the Republican nominee challenged Hitler by name. He said:

"I promise by returning to these same American principles that oversame German autocracy once before, both in business and in war, to outdistance Hitler in any contest he chooses in 1940 or after. And I promise that when we beat him, we shall beat him on our own terms, in our own American way."

That paragraph deserves careful attention. Willkie promised to return to the same principles which defeated German autocracy in 1917 both in business "AND IN WAR." Those are HIS words. They are NOT the distorted words of someone else.

Here is another sample of Mr. Willkie's own words:

"We must hate Hitler and also fear him. I am not being an alarmist. I am stating a fact."

If explosive statements and foolish challenges kindle the flames of international ill-will, has any one outdistanced Mr. Willkie in this respect? What was the purpose of challenging Hitler at Elwood? What was the purpose of saying that if Hitler wins in Europe, the odds are "very substantial" we shall have to meet him in war?

Every responsible person knows that mighty efforts must be made to maintain peace in a war-torn world.

The way to preserve peace and security is to build up friends for America. President Roosevelt has done that through his Good Neighbor policy.

The way to preserve peace is to help those countries which are holding off the aggressor nations. President Roosevelt has done that by sending aid to Great Britain.

The way to preserve peace is to build up American defenses. President Roosevelt has done that by building for the United States the greatest Navy in the world. Behind this Navy, we could stand off any European power or combination of powers. We could stand off any invading force in the Pacific.

WILLKIE'S BRAIN TRUST

The careless statements and challenges of candidate Willkie certainly are no aid to peace. Yet at this critical time, he wants to be made Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy, without experience, and he wants to handle delicate diplomatic relations with foreign countries. Has he shown any aptitude for either job? He has NOT.

A few weeks ago Raymond Leslie Buell was added to the Willkie brain trust as adviser on foreign affairs. Do you know Mr. Buell? He is the leading war INTERVENTIONIST in the United States.

Buell said in his book, "Isolated America," that we should send 50 flying fortresses to England, repeal the cash and carry provisions of the neutrality act, repeal the Johnson Act which prohibits loans to Europe, and that Congress should appropriate funds for England.

And Buell was hired as Willkie's adviser on foreign affairs.

Roosevelt Plays With Fire

(Provided by the National Committee of Democrats-For-Willkie)

The names of John O'Donnell and Doris Fleeson over a political dispatch are familiar not only to the readers of the New York Daily News but, through their syndicated column, to millions of readers of other newspapers.

Mr. O'Donnell and Miss Fleeson have long been warm supporters and personal friends of Mr. Roosevelt. But, like the honest reporters they both are, they write the news as they see it.

Said Mr. O'Donnell from Minneapolis in his column day before yesterday:

"Out here in the farm belt, up from Missouri, across down-state Illinois and into Wisconsin and Minnesota, there is only one real issue in this campaign—this issue is war and Willkie is going great guns. Willkie is going to get the votes for the simple reason the people are convinced that Willkie is less likely to get the nation into war than is F. D. R."

The uneasy feeling that Mr. Roosevelt is leading us toward war is not confined to the Middle West. And it is founded on facts—not only on Mr. Roosevelt's provocative statements and actions but in his very nature.

For Franklin Roosevelt loves to push daringly and often recklessly ahead. America admired his daring when he quickly mobilized relief back in 1933, when he brought about Social Security and made collective bargaining the law of the land.

But his very virtue then is a vice now. For Franklin Roosevelt not only loves to push ahead, he loves to play with fire. He cannot help it. Everyone knows that dangerous impulsiveness which is in every fibre of his being.

We do not want a President now who plays with fire because when he does he is playing with the lives of our sons.

Mr. O'Donnell also told us in his column how the people of the country are reacting to the Democratic National Committee's "pamphlet attacking Willkie's loyalty on the basis of his and Mrs. Willkie's German ancestry."

"This is the flaming emotional issue out here that fires the attack on Roosevelt's foreign policy," is the way Mr. O'Donnell describes the Third Termers' scurrilous appeal to racial prejudice.

THE PEOPLE ARE TURNING TO WILLKIE

So the people are turning to this man Willkie—a man cut to the quick by the smear attack on his wife and father, never knowing when his wife may be seriously hurt by flying missiles, but through it all keeping his chin up, plowing ahead in his serious, earnest way, spreading his message of faith in the American people.

He is dog-tired under the strain of his grueling campaign. His voice is hoarse. He lacks the tricks of the clever radio speaker but his earnestness and his courage are pounding home his beliefs into the people's consciousness. And they are listening.

For they know Willkie is honest. He has said that he does not have to be President but he has to live with himself and his conscience.

Mr. O'Donnell is right. The people are realizing that Willkie is less likely to get us into war than is Roosevelt.

And coupled with that is their realization of what power and still more power does to the mind of a man. These are the two deep convictions that are moving them, as we see it, to deny Mr. Roosevelt a Third Term.

"National No Third Term Day," the people's protest at Mr. Roosevelt's bid for continued power, has been heard in every town and city of our land.

These No Third Term rallies, from the deep South to far away Alaska, heard Wendell Willkie in a nation-wide broadcast. They listened to Al Smith in another coast-to-coast broadcast.

And on November 5 we believe the nation will celebrate another No Third Term Day by defeating Mr. Roosevelt's bid for power as crushingly as it defeated his attempt to overthrow the Supreme Court.

For the people know that:

ROOSEVELT+THIRD TERM=WAR
WILLKIE+NATIONAL DEFENSE=PEACE

Dumb Luck

By Louie Black

IT WAS 6 A. M. Big Moe pulled his taxi up in front of Shorty's Coffee Pot on Eighth ave., stopped right on top of a fire hydrant, slammed his door with a resounding bang as he got off—and strode into the eatery with an air of disgust.

The Principal Characters in "Dumb Luck"

Big Moe, a taxi chauffeur who finds a wealthy fare who wants to hit the high spots. Moe sees the young man's wallet and it looks like a financial harvest for the chauffeur.

"Give us a cup a mud and a pair of b'loon tires." He yelled this to Shorty . . . but Shorty was already putting that very order on the glass counter, because he knew from long experience that Moe never ordered anything else but coffee and doughnuts for his morning meal.

Straddling a stool next to a fellow hack-driver who had his nose submerged in a cup of the life-giving beverage, Moe got into position for doughnut-dunking (feet on rail, elbows on counter, and head bent forward over cup in case of any droppings) and opened the conversation.

"What dya think of my dumb luck . . . that just happened to me a little while ago?"

His companion, never coming out of the cup, inquired "Yeh? how come?"

"To look at me — you wooden think that I couldn been worth a half a yard right now, if it wasn't for my dumb luck—would ya?"

His pal immediately withdrew his head from the cup when he heard such a large sum of money mentioned. "Fifty bucks! — your end?—let's hear the details."

"Who knows!" lamented Moe, "Maybe I was good for a C-note. This guy had millions on him."

"What guy?" Moe's pal demanded, shoving his empty cup to one side.

"The guy and gurl I just drove up-state."

"What girl? What are ya talkin' about?"

"Aw . . . I better tell ya the story from the beginnin' . . . so you'll see why I'm eatin' my liver out. But ya better order another outfit, as this is gonna take long to tell."

So the coffee and doughnuts were ordered and Moe began.

"I picked up this bloke on Fifth ave., about midnight. He's a good lookin' kid in his twenties . . . and talks like he just got outta college. And what dya think he asks me? Can I take him to a joint where he can get himself pickled. And he doesn't mind if a blonde or two are involved.

"Can I? Well, I ask you. Boy—I hustled him over to Fifty-fourth st. as fast as I could. You know where Shimmy's Cliparoo is . . . don't you? Shimmy pays 40 per cent on all jobs brought to his joint—that's why I wouldn't take my man across the street to Yussel's. Yussel only pays one-third."

"Yuh—but you get a square deal in Yussel's!" argued Moe's companion.

"Aw—don't worry!—if you're a smart guy . . . and keep your eyes and ears open—Shimmy ain't gonna hype ya."

"So what happened?"

A GENIAL HOST

"So I takes him in to Shimmy's and the guy kinda falls for the atmosphere of the joint. You know how Shimmy is got his place all tricked out with low lights, and a three-piece string band . . . and the high-class molls hostessin' for him? The guy likes the place so much that he asks me, will I join him. Will I?—well, I ask you!

"So we checks our hat'd gear in I run in to the wash-room to slick my hair down. When I come out, Shimmy stops me, before I go in to sit down with the guy, and reminds me to take my badge off.

"So . . . already there's two swell blondes sittin' with the bloke . . . and I come over and take my place at the table. But none of the females give me a fumble, 'cause they're busy honeying and sweethearting the guy. But the guy won't have it. He wants one of them to pay a little attention to me. So one of them gets over close and grabs a half-nelson on me . . . which suits me fine.

"So then the bloke says, 'What'll we drink?' and that's what the molls were waitin' for . . . and they both, at the same time, sing out, 'Oh, goody—let's have champagne.' So I get nervous, because Shimmy charges fifteen bucks for a bottle of that stuff . . . and I don't yet know what the guy is worth . . . or what he'll stand for.

"But my man just smiles and nods to the waiter . . . and the waiter runs to get the stuff.

"Then the waiter pours us each a fancy glass-full—and then slaps the tab down—face down, like they always do. And now I got nervous again. Did the guy have, or did the guy have not, enuff dough? But he simply picks up the tab, looks, smiles and pulls out a wallet. Everybody's eyes turned to that wallet. I could see Shimmy's head go like a corkscrew. Out came a twenty. And I could see, there was plenty more . . . tens, twenties and thirties.

"The waiter takes the double-sawbuck away and comes back quick with five single dollar bills change. So my man flips him one and then tells the girls to split the rest between them. They both smother him with kisses on the jaw, while they slip their deuces down under their garters.

BOY MEETS GIRL

"So I'm takin' all this in and feelin' pretty good. What, with a swell blonde sittin' almost on my lap, drinks for nothin', my cut of the tab already five bucks—and more to come.

"I can see Shimmy givin' our dames the high-sign . . . so they say, 'Alright honey—let's drink.' So we all hist our glasses and the guy is about to gulp his, when suddenly—he stops short.

"A funny look comes over his puss, and I see it. He's lookin' across to the other side of the room. He's sittin' with his back to the wall, understand . . . and he can see everything in the joint from there. And I look across, to see what has scared him.

"There was a broad sittin' with an old gink—old enuff to be her grandfather—and she was lookin' right back at my man, with the same funny gloom on her puss.

"And that's the way they both stared for about two minutes. Transfixed, is the right word I think. Then the guy puts his glass down without drinkin' . . . almost tippin' it over . . . and he gets up slow—and the girl across the room does the same—like he's got her hypnotized—and they start walkin' toward each other . . . and they meet half-way . . . right in the middle of the dance floor.

"The pair stood there like that for about five minutes lookin' at each other like they were talkin' with their eyes. Then the girl busts out cryin' and this breaks the charm. Then the guy grabs her by the wrist and heads for the door.

"But Shimmy already was there to block the way.

"Shimmy say, 'Listen buddy . . . you're takin' one of our hostesses out, which is against the rules of this club . . . and which, besides, is a loss to us in dough. Now we can't allow it. So better let her go.'

"So the guy comes back with, 'This girl is going to be my wife—I've been looking for her for over a week—and now that I've found her—no one can take her from me.'

"Shimmy comes out with this crack: 'Well . . . there ain't nothin' goes on in this joint . . . that 50 bucks can't straighten out.'

"So the guy out with his wallet, and peeling off 50 . . . hands it over to Shimmy and leaves the place, draggin' the girl.

"I ran for my cap and the gent's hat and when I got to the cab, they were seated in the back babblin' to each other. Soon as I jumped on my seat, he said, 'Take us to where we can get married, driver.'

"So I told him that the only place in this world where a couple could get married at that hour was up around Connecticut . . . and that I knew where the place was . . . having helped some couple to elope once before. So he said, 'Get us there—and don't spare the horses.'

TO GRETNA GREEN

"So up Boston Road I went, and I could hear snatches of what they were sayin'. Things like . . . his mother objecting to their marriage . . . and she had decided to lose herself in this new life he had found her in . . . and he said, how could she, when she knew he loved her so . . . and how she loved him just as much . . . and that was why she didn't want to be in the way . . . that she knew his family would disown him . . . and all that stuff. And he said that it was a lucky thing he had run into her when he did . . . as he had made up his mind to drown his troubles in drink . . . and maybe drink himself to death. And I could see through a corner of my eye . . . they were in a clinch and kissin' . . . and she was cryin'.

"So we finally got up to that place where all those lunatics get married in a hurry . . . and they woke up the marrying guy . . . and they got hitched. Then my man asked someone where the best hotel in town was . . . and I run them over to it. Then they got out and thanked me a lot . . . the girl almost failin' on my neck and kissin' me . . . and he out and give me five pounds. Twenty-five bucks! !

"Well—there ain't nothin' goes on in this joint—that 50 bucks can't straighten out."

"Now—when I could a had twice as much . . . if we hadn't of run into that girl of his . . . the way we did."

Moe's pal had listened to all this, while dunking his doughnuts . . . and he was through with his meal, just as Moe ended. Digging in his pockets, he fished out a quarter and threw it to Shorty with the remark, "Give us my change, will ya. I gotta pull in . . . it's late." Then, turning to Moe, he said, "Ya see, ye chump . . . if ya hadn't been so greedy and taken the guy in to Yussel's . . . instead of Shimmy's . . . he wooden of met this dame . . . and you'd of made yourself plenty."

Automobile Old Timers Steal Show at Luncheon

Boston's second annual get-together luncheon of "Old Timers" was the big event on today's program of the 40th Annual Auto Show being held all this week in dealer showrooms in Boston and throughout the Metropolitan area.

Veterans who served from 25 years to 45 years a merchandisers of motor cars and trucks were among the speakers. They reminisced about the early cars

Otto Lawton, with a record of 39 years, told about a customer who complained about noise until it was discovered the owner never drove in anything but second. Another was using too much gas, and it was found he ran on only three of the four cylinders and thought the car therefore should have used less gas.

A. L. Danforth, president of the Boston Automobile Dealers Ass'n, pointed out that there have been 1540 different makes of cars manufactured since the birth of the American motor car industry and there were now only 20 makes being offered.

Arthur Hinchcliffe, with a record of 41 years in the automobile business, told how he drove throughout the entire winter of 1899 successfully because he placed skies on the front wheels and spikes on the rear wheels of his Locomobile Steamer.

By JACK CONWAY

THERE WAS A lesson in courage, intelligence and ability as Jockey G. Hettinger, a high school graduate from the Middle West, brought Conrad Mann into the winner's circle in the seventh race over a distance of one mile and three sixteenths at Rockingham Park.

EDDIE CONNOLLY

"Jockey Hettinger just rode his first winner," announced Babe Rubenstein over the public address system.

That brief statement did not tell the real story of Hettinger's triumph.

Hettinger has been riding for Bill Hartman of the Oak Tree Stable, and was given the assignment on Conrad Mann.

The boy hurried to the jockeys' room as he knew he did not have a complete outfit. He was soon able to borrow what tack he required.

Hettinger's heart beat fast as he sat in the jockey's room and planned his race. As Hettinger waited the horses left the post in the sixth race.

The young jockey cocked his ear at an open window as he listened to the story of the race over the public address system.

'Ambulance, go to the head of the stretch at once," came the voice of Babe Rubenstein over the public address system.

Hettinger jumped to his feet as he anxiously awaited news of what had happened. He soon learned that Story Time with Jockey W. Emery up had crossed its legs after reaching the head of the stretch and fell.

The Jurist, with Jockey H. J. Sconza in the saddle; Charmed One, Jockey F. Farrell up, and Jadaan, Jockey Eddie Connolly at the controls, fell in the general mixup.

Hettinger was informed Emery was not badly hurt, but Connolly, Farrell and Sconza were banged up quite a bit.

(Farrell suffered a broken collar bone, Connolly a slight concussion and Sconza body bruises—Editor's Note.)

Hettinger was deeply concerned over the condition of his friends of the jockey colony.

HETTINGER WAS soon on his way to the track aboard Conrad Mann. The boy received instructions to make his move half way around the final turn, and then to try to run over horses and win.

Starter Bob Frend got the field underway, and Hettinger fell back with his mount as instructed to do so. As the field raced down the back stretch, it appeared as if Conrad Mann was too far behind the leaders to get into the battle for first place. In the stands, there were racegoers who felt that Bill Hartman had made a mistake in giving his horse to such a young jockey.

When the horses reached the far turn, Conrad Mann was still far back.

Then Conrad Mann began to move. At the head of the stretch Conrad Mann was flying. He just caught Mon Doit before he hit the wire. Pay Rack was third, Old Maid fourth.

Hettinger posed for a picture while upon Conrad Mann, weighed in and hurried to the jockey's room.

"What is the latest news on the boys who fell?" asked Hettinger as some of the youngsters in the jockey room offered him their congratulations.

Hettinger was pleased when told that the jockeys would soon recover from their mishaps.

"I couldn't help but think of Johnny Baba when all those horses

CRIMSON FLAYS SNAVELY FOR CORNELL 'PRO' TEAM

The Harvard "Crimson", undergraduate daily, today accused Cornell of being a professionalized football team and said that Carl Snavely, coach of the Big Red, is responsible for the subsidization now being carried on at Ithaca.

The Crimson scribes said that the way to judge a university's athletic system is to take a good look at the sort of a football coach it hires. They assert Snavely left North Carolina University because of the "Graham plan," which was supposed to end the hiring of football players.

Said the "Crimson":

"By 1935 Cornell got sick of losing football games, but it didn't wait for all-Americas just to happen along. It tied the can to Gil Dobie and his scholar-athletes, and went into the market for a new grid professor.

"Carl Snavely was the man elected to coach the Big Red elevens under its new streamlined football policy. Known as the 'Drillmaster,' Carl came to Ithaca well prepared for a career of instructing subsidized athletes.

"At University of North Carolina, where alumni money is given out by one of the football coaches, Snavely coached during 1933-36. His teams turned in a record of 18 wins as against two losses.

"Soon the Southern colleges instituted the "Graham Plan," eliminating professionalism, and Snavely checked out with a year left on his contract."

"Why did Snavely go so abruptly?" the "Crimson" continues.

"Let Mr. Leonard Lobred, sports editor of the 'Daily Tarheel,' give the answer: 'The cause of Snavely's resignation from North Carolina was supposedly because he wished to improve his financial position. The real, but unannounced, cause was the Graham Plan, which was to eliminate subsidization.'

"It seems that Snavely's fears about the Graham Plan were ill-founded because the idea has never been put into effect."

The gist of the Graham Plan was merely the suggestion that (1) every athlete should account for all sources of income and be limited to a certain amount, and (2) that athletes with jobs should be held to the same amount of pay as other self-help students

The Crimson infers that Snavely did not like the prospects at the Southern institution and states:

"Snavely found the wind of a set-up he wanted at Cornell. Cornell had just overhauled its simon-pure athletic policy, and had evolved an interesting new procedure of scholarships to worthy football geniuses.

"Strangely enough, coincident with this overhauling, great carloads of talent began unloading at the Ithaca railroad station. The Southern delegation came with Coach Carl. The dope from our Carolina neighbors has it that several Penn prep stars

Blaik Banks on Soph Backfield To Whoop It Up Against Harvard

By JOE CASHMAN

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 24—Lack of speed in the backfield has been the most glaring football weakness at Dartmouth this fall, just as it has been at Harvard.

In an effort to remedy this fault, to which can be traced, in a large measure, the Big Green's defeats at the hands of Franklin-Marshall, Columbia and Yale on the past three Saturdays, Coach Earl Blaik may depend mainly on a brand new ball-carrying quartet against the Crimson in the Stadium this week-end.

As the latter completed his preliminary practice for the day today, the starting eleven opined it probably would start the same foursome which opened against Yale—Seniors Ray Hall and Don Norton, Junior Dale Bartholomew and Sophomore Ray Wolfe.

"But," he added, "They'll have to click quickly or else."

The "or else" we're informed, means that Blaik is all prepared to experiment with a quartet consisting of Bill Wierman, Johnny Koslowski, Ted Arico and Johnny Krol.

All these are sophomores, save Arico, who is a junior. All except Krol, are below the average in size. But all can run, which is more than can be said of any of the current first-string quartet, excepting Wolfe who is still suffering from the effects of the Yale game.

If they read this at Harvard they'll probably ask

Who is Wierman?

HARDLY KNOWN

They're asking the same question around the campus here.

Fellow students know less about him as a football player today than they knew a week ago today about one "Red" Krumm, a Newark sophomore, who was unveiled as a reserve end against Yale last Saturday and will be a starting wing against Harvard.

This Wierman fellow, a 173-pound fullback from Denver, Col., couldn't climb higher than the freshman "B" team last fall.

He impressed nobody in spring practice.

He started this season as a member of the lowly jayvees. He still was being bumped and bruised by the varsity as late as last Tuesday.

Suddenly Blaik became desperate watching regular backs who couldn't move off a dime.

He beckoned Wierman into the first-string backfield.

The kid has been running wild ever since.

FASTEST ON TEAM

Not sensationally fast, he's the "fastest human" compared to the other fullbacks on the squad. Inexperienced, he can't help but make errors in competition.

But experience having failed to save Dartmouth getting off to its poorest start in years, Blaik will need very little excuse to give Wierman a thorough trial in the Stadium.

Arico, Koslowski and Krol are receiving plenty of consideration at the moment, not alone because of superior speed but also because they are Bay State boys.

Arico, a mighty mite and the fleetest runner on the squad, is a native of Belmont. He hasn't the strength to crack a line but shake him loose and there is no catching him.

Koslowski, who might have been the regular blocking back from the opening bell if he hadn't been on the doctor's list, hails from Manchester-by-the-Sea. He's had a minimum of practice but he appeared hard and rugged enough during a short start against Yale.

KROL, GREEN OFFENSE KEY

Krol, Greater Boston scholastic grid fans will recall, was an ace at Waltham High and with the Dartmouth Freshman last fall. He was counted upon being a varsity standout from the opening bell this season. In fact, the big Green offense was planned around him.

He was slow starting, being handicapped by a baseball injury and also by being shifted from halfback to fullback. Thus it was found necessary to bench him. Now, however, he's back in shape physically is again a halfback and is beginning to live up to expectations.

Why is Blaik interested in giving a Bay State thigo to his line-up?

Because, in seven years as head coach here, he's escaped defeat in the Stadium and in most of those games it was Massachusetts boys, giving the greatest performances of their careers, who saved the Indians.

It is as if every kid who hails from the vicinity of Harvard and chooses Dartmouth as his alma mater is determined every chance he gets to show the Crimson he made no mistake.

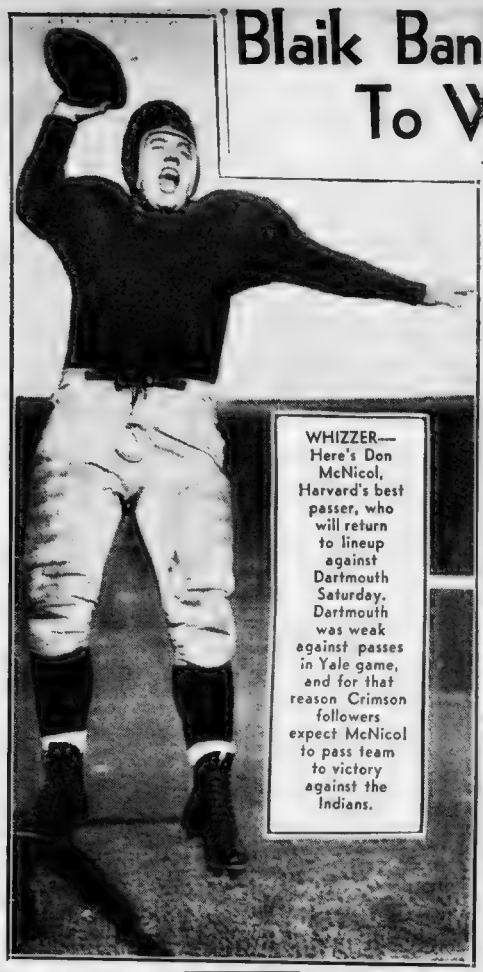
It is from this angle not to be considered by a football coach, and Blaik isn't neglecting it.

He's working Krol, Arico and Koslowski overtime in the backfield.

MALDEN'S WINSHIP TACKLE

In the line he's taking the wraps off Maldens Monty Winship at tackle, Allston's Dan Dacey at guard, Allston's Joe Crowley at end to keep company with Newton's Bob O'Brien, who has developed into one of the East's standout tackles.

In short, Mr. Blaik is prepared to shoot the works in this fray in an effort to steer his charges back to the victory trail after six straight defeats at greatest major foes.



WHIZZER—Here's Don McNicol, Harvard's best passer, who will return to lineup against Dartmouth Saturday. Dartmouth was weak against passes in Yale game, and for that reason Crimson followers expect McNicol to pass team to victory against the Indians.

PASSER DON M'NICOL WINS HARVARD STARTING BERTH

Dick Harlow has made a drastic shift in his Harvard "A" team as a result of recent scrimmages . . . Charley Spreyer, Joe Koufman and Lone Star Dietz—all regulars and starters against Army, have been dropped to the second team . . . Passing ace Don McNicol takes over Spreyer's backfield post . . . Soph Johnny Morgan replaces Koufman at end and Burgy Ayres has resumed his place at center.

Stephen Mallett of West Newton has been elected captain of the Crimson Cubs. He is 6 feet 3 inches, weighs 191 and is considered a great prospect at tackle . . . Steve prepped at Kimball Union Academy and has been a regular on the frosh team all fall . . . Harvard's frosh team has none too impressive a record of defeats at the hands of Exeter and Worcester Academy and a win over Andover . . .

The "Harvard Crimson" didn't intend to get into hot water over the subsidization attack . . . One of the over zealous writers said that "Cornell was professional and Penn could be classified as the same" . . . Penn authorities refused to comment, but Cornell said that only two of their football players were scholarship holders. The "Crimson" took up the challenge and now is trying to prove that the Big Red are pros and should not be in the Ivy League.

The Yale Daily News in an editorial today suggests that the Athletic Directors and an undergraduate representative of the "Ivy League" form a council which would agree on starting practice dates, schedules, and policies to follow . . . These are dark days for the Ivy League, but Yale may have the solution.

A gigantic Harvard rally, the second in a row, will be held at 7:15 tomorrow night at the Harvard Indoor Athletic Building.

Cornell Scrimmages Against Ohio Plays

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 24 (INS) Carl Snavely, Cornell coach, was taking no chances today for Saturday's meeting with Ohio State.

Every man on the first and second elevens, including those with injuries, were ordered to participate in the long mid-week scrimmage against Ohio State plays.

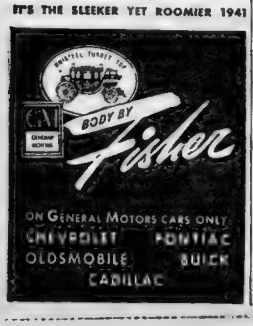
IT'S THE SLEEKER YET ROOMIER 1941



Taking a most active interest in the Junior Competition and accepting an invitation to become a member of the Junior Shoot Competition Committee is David C. McNeill of Beverly, a man whose entire spare time is devoted to marksmanship.

ORGANIZED BEVERLY CLUB

Mr. McNeill is rated an authority in both rifle and pistol circles. He is secretary and organizer of the Beverly Rifle and Pistol Club, the Eastern Massachusetts Rifle League, the Beverly Girls' Rifle Club and the Massachusetts Pistol League.

An accomplished and expert marksman in his own right, Mr. McNeil was a member of the Massachusetts Civilian Firing Team at Camp Perry, Ohio, in 1930 and 1935. He captained the team in 1936 and '37. He won the Massachusetts State Civilian championship, held at Camp Curtis Guild, Wakefield, in 1929.

He is particularly wrapped up in the many successes which have come the way of his Beverly Girls' Rifle Club which last year won national acclaim in competition among the foremost shooting teams of the United States.

GIRLS EQUAL TO BOYS

"Shooting is one sport where girls can hold their own with male competitors," McNeill states. "Our Beverly team has competed against boys from all over and have turned in many fine victories.

"There is no cleaner or finer sport in all the realm of sports than rifle shooting, and I am tremendously pleased that the Boston American-Record is stressing its importance at this most vital time in our national defense program.

"Those of us who know marksmanship will do our utmost to see to it that the William Randolph Hearst competitions, both senior and junior, are tremendous successes."

TONY PEPPI FAVORED IN 112'S

Eastern all-America, New England all-America, New England A. A. A. U. and state amateur boxing champions will be seen in action at the Arena on Monday night when the Irish-American A. A. stages its Golden Gloves championship finals.

One of the classiest youngsters on the card will be Tony Peppi of the North End, who is favored to capture the duke in the 112-pound class.

HOLDS TWO TITLES

Tony, boxing only two years, has compiled 35 victories in that time, including the N. E. all-America and N. E. A. A. A. U. crowns.

His opponents Monday will be John Griffin, Lawrence millworker; Tommy Luckman, Brockton, and George Katsekas, Manchester, N. H.

On the opposite side of the pole is Howard Thompson, 197-pound rigger from Saugus, who is the heaviest man in the tournament.

Thompson will try to cop the laurels in the heavyweight division but many fans expect him to bow to John Pretzie, 190-pounder from the Back Bay, who has registered 19 knockouts in 21 starts.

KNOCKOUT LOOMS

One thing seems certain, however, and that is the evening's festivities will end in a kayo, because Estrino Cirnino, 190-pound Technical High school football star from Providence, and Dave Bagley, 190-pound garage attendant from West Newton, both hard hatters, are the other heavyweight finalists.

The complete program will consist of 21 bouts, three in each of the eight championship classes.

Colby, Bowdoin Duel Highlight Of Maine Series

WATERVVILLE, Me., Oct. 24—There seems to be a feeling through the Pine Tree State that the winner of the Colby-Bowdoin clash here Saturday will be the next Maine champion.

Colby, undefeated in four starts, is the team to beat while Bowdoin with a big rugged squad has had all sorts of tough breaks but seems to be finally straightened away.

Al McCoy, a standout offensive coach, has a highly geared starting eleven. His team has rolled up 71 points in four games against 26. They have gained 1068 yards on the ground and picked up 302 via the airlanes.

The Mules have completed 19 out of 44 pass attempts to show that they can click aerially if their running attack stalls. To date nobody has been able to stop the Mules and they have averaged 13 first downs per game.

But Bowdoin is the toughest foe Colby has been called upon to face this year and if McCoy's gang gets past the Polar Bears, it's a good bet that they'll win the title.

Wildcats Face Gun In Vermont's Taylor

DURHAM, N. H., Oct. 24—New Hampshire will have plenty of trouble running its string of victories to four with Vermont offering the opposition Saturday according to no less a critic than George Sauer, the Wildcat coach.

The brilliant young New Hampshire mentor is no little concerned over building an adequate pass defense to stop Frankie Taylor, the Catamounts' sharp-shootiig halfback.

Last Saturday, Taylor threw two touchdown passes, to beat Union in the small college upset of the day. Union, undefeated in 13 straight starts, had never lost to Vermont in the 40-year rivalry between the two institutions. Taylor, however, toss tradition out of the park with his trusty right arm.

Because of the touchdown threat with Taylor in there, Sauer plans to open his own offense quite a bit, now that Win MacDonald, former Waltham High ace, is available.

MacDonald sustained a head injury early in the Springfield game last Saturday, but fortunately it is not serious.

In the first three games the Wildcats played, MacDonald ranked 11th in the nation for successful passers, with opposition such as Paul Christman, Tommy Harmon, Paul Reagan, Charlie O'Rourke and others. He completed 14 out of 24, for an average of 8.08 yards per throw.

With MacDonald available, the game at Burlington may wind up in quite an air duel.

B. C. PLANS DEFENSE FOR HAWKS' AERIALS

Boston College's Frank Leahy, himself the owner of a three ring aerial circus, respects the passing potentialities of his opponents.

That's why the Eagle mentor is working overtime on the Boston College pass defense these crisp fall afternoons. Though St. Anselm, Manhattan and Boston University, next three opponents of the Leahymen and Frank's present worries (he's reserved Georgetown, Auburn and Holy Cross for later and more rugged worry) haven't a passer to compare with the marvelous Charlie O'Rourke—or sophomore Mickey Connolly for that matter—the Eagle mentor isn't taking a thing for granted.

With O'Rourke for everyday reference Leahy readily recognizes the damage that a good pitcher can do to the opposition. That's why St. Anselm's Capt. Ed Boule, a respected passer, will be working against the best pass defense the Eagles will have strung up thus far this season. If practice means anything it will be the best. The Eagles are getting lots of it this week.

PASS DEFENSE BAD AT TIMES

Against Center the Boston College pass defense was definitely vulnerable. At New Orleans when Tulane was the opposition, the inexperienced tossers whom the Green Wave employed didn't bother the Eagles to any noticeable degree.

When Temple and a guy named Andy Tomasic came to town, however, Boston College's supposed defense against passes was riddled. Mentor Leahy didn't care for the obvious lack of aerial defense—not by a long shot.

Last week, with only a thrice defeated Idaho team to worry about, the Chestnut Hill gridders were worked hard—mostly on pass defense. When the Vandals arrived in town their passing attack was no better than anything else they showed and the Eagle defense was not tested.

HAWKS POINTED FOR B. C.

Saturday, when canny Cleo O'Donnell brings his "everything to gain, and nothing to lose" Hawks to Alumni Field, the much worked upon defense will probably get its best workout since the Temple game. Brother Boule is said to be that kind of pitcher.

St Anselm has been pointing for this clash. From Head Coach O'Donnell right down through the newest student manager the Manchester crowd admits this. The Hawks aren't going to Newton to hold the score down. They're out to win.

Hawks Sharpen Claws For Duel With Eagles

St. Anselm Plans Surprise for B. C.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 24—With a war cry of "Blitz B. C." ringing in their ears, St. Anselm's Hawks went through their daily football paces at top speed on a wind-swept field here today.

Some new and fancy maneuvers were unfolded for visiting scribes as Cleo O'Donnell mapped an offensive which he hopes will surprise the Eagles in their Saturday encounter at Alumni Field, Newton.

"We've got some new plays to spring on B. C.," said O'Donnell, now in his sixt hseason as head coach here. "Maybe some of them will work, but our big trouble so far has been a lack of speed. That B. C. bunch is one of the fastest I've ever watched.

"With a touch of speed in our previous games we could have been undefeated. (St Anselm lost 26-19 to Scranton, 6-0 to Catholic University and 13-0 to St. Mary's from Texas after beating Lowell Tech 38-7.)

"With McLean around last year, we had it, but kids as fast as McLean don't come along often." (Runaway Ray McLean is now with the professional Chicago Bears.)

WESTBORO, Oct. 24—Dutton's Devil Divers will present their aerial show and flying circus at the airport here next Sunday, starting at 2 p. m.

The program will consist of 15 stunts and novelties and will include bomb diving as employed in the present war, parachute jumps from various altitudes.

Larry Baird will make a delayed parachute jump from a 10,000 foot height, pummeling through space for 9000 feet before pulling the rip cord.

Upside down flying also will be on the program.

Other difficult feats such as hedge hopping cars, target hits upon cars, landing a plane on top of an automobile while traveling 70 miles per hour are also scheduled.

NEWCOMERS AID BOSTON OLYMPICS

Bolstering a squad which Coach Hago Harrington had already termed the "strongest he ever coached," three newcomers have reported for service with the Boston Olympics.

The trio are Tony Bolduc, Colby captain last year; Fred Rancourt of Waterville, Me., and Fred Kanob, formerly of McGill but now studying at Tech.

Kanob, a defense man, played senior hockey at McGill, but such are the requirements at Tech that he may not be able to practice as often as Harrington would wish.

Rancourt, also a defenseman, is the heaviest man on the roster, 216 pounds. Although he lives in Waterville, site of Colby, he attended John Carroll University in Cleveland.

Bolduc played at the Arena often as a member of the Colby team.

With veteran Paul Guiboni and Bill Splaine also back, the Pics are looking forward to a most successful season, which they open Nov. 13 in Baltimore.

B. C. Freshmen Play Dartmouth at Heights

Boston College's freshman football team will tackle Dartmouth freshmen tomorow afternoon at Alumni Field, Newton, the game starting at 2:30 p.m. The Big Green frosh recently drubbed Holy Cross yearlings, 19-6. Boston College's freshmen club won its only start, 6-0, over Marianapolis.

It's a fact—no sooner do the bright-and-shiny new models come into the market than a crop of excellent used-car values starts coming in, too. People who can't resist buying the very newest models are the people who often bring in last year's (or the year's before) models in almost good-as-new condition. If you're loking for the tops in used-car value, their good luck is yours. This is the time—and the Record-American and Sunday Advertiser Automobiles For Sale Columns is the place to find these values. See Page 29.

Cornell Dominates Statistics

SEATTLE, Oct. 24 (AP)—Those giants of the East—Cornell and Pennsylvania — dominate this week's batch of statistics as compiled by the American Football Statistical Bureau, and the welter of figures also indicates some interesting conclusions.

For the second straight week Cornell is tops in total offense—gains both rushing and passing—with a 466.7 yard average per game. The Ithacans gained 554 yards on the ground and 816 in the air for 1400 yards in three games.

THIRD STRAIGHT WEEK

For the third straight week Cornell was the nation's "passingest" team, averaging 272 yards via the air lanes.

Penn meanwhile boomed into second place in total offense with a 400-yard per game average and, the statistics say, the country's best rushing outfit with a 303.7 average per game.

Also, Penn for the second straight week boasted the best defense against rushing. Its opposition, while not too robust, grossed 147 yards against the unqaking Quaker forwards and lost 121 yards for the microscopic net yield of 26 yards, or an average per game of only 8.7 yards.

Penn's Saturday adversary, Michigan, which has been playing tougher teams, is ninth in total offense, but fifth in rushing alone, what with Harmon, Westfall and Evashevski, so Saturday's tilt should pit a strong running outfit against a line which held Maryland, Yale and Princeton ball packers to that tiny 8.7 per game average.

LEADERS FACE ANTIDOTES

Cornell's Saturday foe, Ohio State, the 1939 total offense leaders, also has been playing tougher clubs and doesn't figure among the offensive leaders, its 252 yard per game average being well under the accomplishments of the first five. But the Ohio Staters rank fifth in pass defense, holding the enemy aerials to an average of only 34.8 per game.

This means the nation's best passing club will run up against a team with a stout anti-aircraft department, so all four — Cornell, Ohio State, Penn and Michigan, will get an opportunity to try out their best poison against high grade antidotes.

The leaders, statistically, were:

TOTAL OFFENSE—After Cornell and Penn come Detroit, 369.5 yards average per game; Lafayette, 357.5; Arizona, 346; Brown, Mississippi, Navy and Kentucky with Michigan and Creighton tied for 10th. Mississippi and Drake [illegible] round the top five.

RUSHING OFFENSE—Lafayette, which whacked the likes of Ursinus, N. Y. U., Muhlenberg and Gettysburg rolled up 1168 yards for a 3.2 average per carry. The Lafayette Leopards, who apparently like to march, will greet their info [illegible] against Uncle Sam's Arms Saturday. Penn's 292.7 average is second, followed by Brown 299; Detroit, 287, and Michigan 276. Creighton and Mississippi boost out to the newcomers, Penn and Brown.

PASSING OFFENSE—Cornell is way in front at 272. Princeton, which gained more than 300 yards in the skies against Penn last week, is second at 185.7; Marquette is third with 181.3, followed by the lofty-minded Yales whose grid tactics have been on an atmospheric plane with their announced standards, 148.3, and Missouri, 147.8.

TOTAL DEFENSE—Mississippi State, with a game missing, has yielded an average of 67.7 yards per game. Then comes Navy, 72.3; Penn State, 81.3; San Jose State, 93.2 in six games, and Michigan, 98.5. Georgia, Texas A. & M., 1939 leader; Rice, Clemson and Detroit round out the 1st.

RUSHING DEFENSE—After Penn again comes Penn State, 18.3; Texas A. & M., 23.5; Clemson, 37.7, and Navy, 41.3.

PASS DEFENSE—Mississippi State still one game shy, 17.1; Fordham 23.0, Utah State, 30.3, Navy, 31.3, and Ohio State, 34.8.

PUNTING—Clemson, Texas Mines, Holy Cross, Oklahoma and Kentucky.

Buster Price Meets Hayes at Fall River

FALL RIVER, Oct. 24—Sam Price will serve his fistic customers a twin-eight feature at the Casino tonight, with Buster Price of Providence clashing with Johnny Hayes of Boston and Jack DuBois of Fall River with Billy Lancaster of Portland.

A six-rounder and two fours will complete the card.

went down," said a veteran jockey. "They tell us that death always rides away from the barrier with us, but one never likes to think about such things. Then there is a bad spill, and one doesn't feel right until he finds out that all the kids are going to come through all right."

If young Hettinger had any such thoughts he didn't mention them to anybody as he went out to ride Conrad Mann. He had plenty of time to think as he paraded his horse to the post. In the stands, the crowd was hushed as it didn't know at the time how seriously the jockeys in the spill were injured.

HETTINGER WAS out to win, and he couldn't permit himself to think of anything but the race once the field left the barrier.

Veteran jockeys tell me that in the excitement of a race they do not have time to consider the possibility of injuries.

Jockeys as a class try to avoid jams. They are as anxious to prevent another boy from getting injured as they are to save themselves from a bad toss.

Thoroughbreds seldom step on a boy on the ground. This is why jockeys thrown from their mounts try to remain motionless on the ground. By instinct a thoroughbred will step over a fallen rider.

RULES GOVERNING THE FOOTBALL CONTEST

NO. 5

The object of the Daily Record-American Football Contest is to select winners of twenty collegiate football games to be played each Saturday. Anyone may enter the contest excepting employes of the Record-American and their families.

The selections are listed on the chart here which is ready to be filled out by the contestant. Simply place an (X) in the space nearest the name of the team you think will win, or if you predict a tie game place the letter (T) or the spaces nearest the names of the tying teams.

Calculate the AVERAGE score of all competing teams, except those for which you predict a tie score. Write winners' and losers' average score in space provided in coupon. Do not write individual scores in spaces or on the coupon. Indicate average scores only by adding scores of all teams and then divide the total by the number of teams competing.

Only ONE solution may be entered by a contestant. All entries must be in the office of the Record-American not later than Midnight Friday, the day before the games.

You need not buy a copy of the Record or American to enter this contest. Tracings of the contest form may be made from copies in the public library or in the Record-American office. Such entries will be acceptable and given equal consideration with those clipped from these newspapers.

A prize of $100.00 will be awarded the person whose entries contain all selections correct. If more than one person submits perfect solutions, $100.00 will be awarded the tieing contestant whose average score tabulations most nearly match with actual average scores of the games. If no perfect list of solutions is entered $50.00 will be awarded to the contestant having the nearest number of selections correct and should two or more contestants tie for this prize the tieing contestant submitting the most nearly correct average scores will receive the award. A prize of $25.00 will be awarded the person submitting the second largest number of correct solutions and should two or more contestants tie for this prize, tieing contestant submitting the most nearly correct average scores will receive the prize. Twenty-five awards of $1.00 each will be given the twenty-five contestants whose entries contain in succession, the next largest number of correct solutions and whose average scores most nearly match the actual scores of the games.

Winners of each week's contest will be announced on the Saturday following the games. The decision of the judges in all cases shall be final.

Mail all entries to the Record-American Football Contest Editor, P. O. Box 1987, Boston, Mass.

In the event of postponement of any of the games, such games will automatically be excluded from the contest. In the event that the planned date of any game scheduled is changed, then that game is automatically excluded.

"As English as a Mutton Chop"

LORD GOSFORD

Retired Assistant Adjutant General of the British Army and member of the Royal Yacht Squadron, Lord Gosford, compares Krueger's to the finest ale in London. "It is as English as a mutton chop," he says.

ALE CURIOSITIES

...In England, during the Middle Ages, men were judged socially by the quality of ale they served.

...The name Britain was derived from the Greek name for ale.

• • •

...Archeologists have proved that ale was enjoyed in the 42nd Century B.C.

The G. Krueger Brewing Company, Newark, N.J.

JUST TASTE Krueger Cream Ale...and you'll understand the enthusiasm of our friends from the British Isles. It has that hearty, typically British taste that can be produced only through brewing in the genuine English manner.

Krueger Cream Ale is made according to the old tradition...in an ale house specially constructed for the purpose. We've spent almost a million dollars on that ale house...and one glass-full of Krueger's will convince you it has a million dollar imported taste. This brisk fall weather is a good time to enjoy a hearty glass of Krueger Cream Ale. Look for the little K-man on the bottle.

BRUINS IN SHAPE FOR FAST GETAWAY

The Boston Bruins will rely this year on the same 15 players who carried the club to the National Hockey League championship last season only to drop the Stanley cup series to the New York Rangers when the Boston team was crippled by injuries.

"This team should be as strong as last season's club," declared General Manager Art Ross in discussing prospects. "Of course, we expect much stiffer competition all through the league. But every club should contribute to the fastest breakaway in league history with the players reporting in such advanced physical condition due to military training."

Ross feels that the coming schedule is to the disadvantage of the Boston team with several double week-end contests on the road.

"If we are going to repeat, it will require greater hockey than the team played last season. The Rangers should be as strong as or stronger than last year and the break in games on the schedule imposes a handicap on us."

STAND PAT

Ross took 12 amateurs to Hershey and also worked the flashy Bear line of Terry Reardon, Pat McReavy and Gordon Bruce, but finally decided to stand pat on last season's lineup.

That will put Frank Brimsek in the nets with Capt. "Dit" Clapper and Jack Shewchuk forming one defense tandem and Jack Crawford and Des Smith making up the other. Bill "Flash" Hollett will hold down the utility berth.

He'll use the same three forward lines. The high-scoring line centered by Milt Schmidt, with Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer on the wings; the trio in which veteran Bill Cowley is flanked by Roy Conacher and Mel Hill and last season's surprise third line made up of Art Jackson at center and Herb Cain and Eddie Wiseman at the wings.

That places a question mark squarely after the name of Robert "Red" Hamill on the Bruin roster. The big red-head, used alternately at defense and a wing berth last season, has been flashing great form in pre-season drills. It may be that his spirited play will induce Ross to carry a 16-man squad, as was done in the closing weeks of last season when Hamill was recalled from the Hershey Bears.

Ross feels definitely that this is the strongest team he can assemble.

Schmidt, one of the game's great playmakers, was his scorer of the league last season and his linemates chipped in to make the "Kitchener Kids" the leading scoring line of the league and one which was generally considered as the greatest forward set in the game.

The veteran Clapper, starting his 14th major league season, was an all-star defense man last year and looks fit for another great season. Brimsek has improved steadily at goal and is ranked right up with Dave Kerr of the Rangers among the game's great net-minders.

TESTED PAIR

Shewchuk improved considerably last season playing alongside Clapper and Ross expects him to be of constant aid this season in Bruin scoring drives. Smith and Crawford are a thoroughly tested defense pair.

Cowley's experience and trickery enable him to set up plays constantly for Roy Conacher's rifle-like shots and the opportunism of Mel Hill.

The Jackson line, which was the surprise of the Stanley Cup series until the sturdy little center was injured, is ready to pick up right where it left off.

The Bruin season opens in Montreal, Nov. 3, when the veteran team faces off with Les Canadiens, who open the race this year under the coaching guidance of Dick Irvin, who was with Toronto's Maple Leafs last season.

120 Fox Hounds, 19 Horses Die In Kentucky Fire

BARDSTOWN, Ky., Oct. 24 (AP)—One hundred twenty fox hounds and 19 saddle horses were destroyed early today when fire swept the Nelson County stockyards, bringing a tragic halt to the Kentucky State Fox Hunters Ass'n's annual meeting.

The losses were not estimated, but association members, most of whom lost from one to 16 hounds, said one of the great losses would be in breeding stock.

Navy Squad Off for Yale

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 24 (AP)—The 40-man navy football squad will leave by special train at 9 o'clock tonight for New Haven, where the Middies play Yale Saturday. The team will arrive at 9 a. m. tomorrow and work out in Yale Bowl at 1:30 p. m.

The second battalion of the Midshipmen regiment, numbering 650 men, the Naval Academy band and the Midshipmen's drum and bugle corps, will leave for New Haven at 6:35 p. m. tomorrow and arrive at 7:30 a. m. Saturday.

Final Big Car Race At Thompson Sunday

THOMPSON, Ct., Oct. 24—The final big car race of the season for the track championship of the local Speedway, will be held next Sunday.

The feature race will be a 50-lap affair, with the 12 fastest qualifying cars to start.

The New England Crown will be contested over a 30-lap grind.

This big event will count toward the Eastern A. A. A. point standings which Bill Holland still leads, with Joie Chitwood in second position. With Holland retired, Chitwood has an excellent chance to win the championship.

The full blooded Cherokee has won his last six races, and has established new track records in four of these.

Time trials will start at 1 p. m. The first race will get under way at 2 p. m.

Carver Picks Penn, Cornell, Navy, Dartmouth in Saturday Classics

By LAWTON CARVER

International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (INS)—The pigskin parade heads down the stretch of the season on the coming week-end with one gala attraction transcending all else in public appeal and bringing on this question for the further befuddlement of those who would pick the winners:

Will it be Michigan or Penn?

We are going to go along with Penn and Francis Reagan over the Michiganders and Tom Harmon in a game that may produce many or few touchdowns and an abundance of theatrical football stemming from the efforts of the two All-Americas.

Among other things, Harmon is the nation's leading scorer on the big time with 79 points, and Reagan is in second place with 61.

On paper, the game is about as close to a tossup as any to be found on the day's schedule, with Penn seemingly boasting a slight edge in punch against Michigan's slim margin on the defense and psychological advantage in playing at Ann Arbor.

Anyhow, we're stringing along with Penn, and with that move on to these headliners:

EAST

Cornell over Ohio State, Navy over Yale, Holy Cross over Brown, Colgate over Mississippi College, Princeton over Rutgers, Dartmouth over Harvard, Penn State over Temple, Amherst over Wesleyan, Fordham over St. Mary's, Columbia over Syracuse, Army over Lafayette, Georgetown over New York University, Boston College over St. Anselm in a romp, and, Friday night, Duquesne over Manhattan, and West Virginia over George Washington. We also like Villanova over Detroit, and St. Mary's of Texas over Long Island in Sunday games.

Of the foregoing, Ohio State, St. Mary's of California and Lafayette seem to have the best chance to score upsets.

MIDWEST

With Michigan meeting Penn out of the Conference, Big Ten attention will be centered on Northwestern's attempt to retain leadership in a game with Indiana and Minnesota's clash with Iowa.

You have to go along with Northwestern and Minnesota to preserve their perfect records. And it looks like Notre Dame over Illinois easily and Purdue over Wisconsin in other headliners.

In the Big Six, they will virtually settle the Conference race in the annual tussle between Nebraska and Missouri, with the former herewith timidly selected, along with Kansas State over Kansas in a virtual tossup. Oklahoma over Iowa State, and Michigan State over Santa Clara.

SOUTH

Mississippi, only major eleven to win five straight games, won't improve on its position at head of the Southeastern Conference by a slim margin this week, but probably will increase its number of victories by beating Arkansas. In other major games in that circuit, Tennessee figures to swamp Florida, Georgia Tech should take Auburn, Georgia should top Kentucky and Vanderbilt ought to nose out Louisiana State.

Mississippi State will go over into the Southern Conference to play and probably beat North Carolina State, and Tulane will do the same thing against North Carolina.

Clemson, Southern loop leader, should turn back South Carolina, and Duke figures over Wake Forest and Washington and Lee over V. P. I. in other major attractions in that loop.

SOUTHWEST

The unbeaten Texas Aggies will add another victory to their string against Baylor, Texas will maintain similar pace against Rice, Texas Christian should win handily from Tulsa, while Arkansas will play and probably lose to Mississippi.

PACIFIC COAST

Stanford will be tested by Southern California but should win, and we like Washington over California, Oregon State over U. C. L. A., Washington State over Oregon, Montana over Gonzaga and Utah State over Idaho.

Mansfield Regains Old Football Glory

By SAM BROGNA

Not since the days the coach himself, Johnny Certuse, last played there has Mansfield High turned in any sort of a creditable showing to make the home folk sit up and take notice as the present 1940 edition.

One has to go back as far as the early thirties when this little town was represented in the "big" leagues playing against such teams as Lynn English, Brockton and the likes when it last made the sports pages—other than the usual 1 col. agate line score result. It was at that time that John Certuse, who later starred at Brown; Herb Stearns who went on to captain the Dartmouth Indians in 1935; Hugo Blanderi who upheld the Mansfield name at Boston College, Nick Rossi and a few others who made the football fraternity sit up and take notice.

UNDEFEATED TO DATE

But since that era, Mansfield dropped from the top of the heap and were finally forced to be satisfied playing smaller elevens. Even at that, it had difficulty in holding its own against these small school teams since the material also fell way below par.

The situation however is somewhat different this fall. Johnny Certuse who made a name for himself as a player returned this year to make a name as a coach. He picked up where he left off as that now, with the season only at the half way mark, he has already succeeded as a coach.

To date, his team played five games and is undefeated. The only smirch is the 7 to 7 deadlock with Ashland, the third game of the season. As a matter of fact, outside of that encounter, Mansfield was not scored upon.

PICTURE CHANGES AGAIN

Playing in a class by themselves an dtaking each game as it comes along, Coach Certuse has completely reversed the football picture at Mansfield. Last year, under Bob Andrews, it was a poor season; two campaigns before this, under Buel Hassett, Mansfield again was a floundering outfit as well as Buel's first eleven three years ago.

With the exception of the 1936-37 aggregation, it's the same story year after year until around 1931.

Medway was the first on the list. Playing under the Certuse regime, the Mansfielders came out on top 18 to 0. Whitman was next and the score of this tilt was 20 to 0. The Ashland tie followed. Canton had little to say in the matter so was blanked 7 to 0.

Last week, clicking on all cylinders, they ran roughshod over Oliver Ames, submerging their opponents 41 to 0.

The man who also should share in the success of this year's eleven is Jim Kelley, former coach but now present head master of the junior high school.

Jim gave up the tutoring job when Mansfield was on the downgrade and gave all hi stime to the head master's job. He couldn't stay away from the game, however, so returned and organized the junior teams.

His work now is paying dividends since most of the boys who make up the first team, are sophomores. Four regulars who are sophs and one junior were developed by Kelley. The rest of the first stringers are seniors.

Capt. Ed Bessom, center, leads the undefeated brigade. Although standing an even six feet, Ed weighs but 160 pounds and is one of the fastest men on the team. Flanking him are Jeff Fuller, a junior, and J. Wills, a six foot sophomore.

Aside of Fuller is Ed Neligon, a 205-pounder, and "Poopy" Eldrige also close to the 200-pound mark and an even six-footer. The former will be graduated next June, but Eldrige still has two years to go. For ends Certuse has been using Bob Lane, a junior; Arky Robertson, a soph, and Pat Flammia, a senior.

The team is directed by 'Mushie' Julian, a dimutive quarterback who also broke into a regular berth in his sophomore season "Mushie" does most of the punting Albert Scatolini, another six-footer, and Donald Hill, handle the halfback assignments, the former doing most of the finging and some punting, and the latter, a three-letter man, the carrying.

CAVALLO SPARKS WEYMOUTH

Coach Harry Arlanson's unbeaten and untied Weymouth High grid machine will square off against a higher rated Quincy eleven in one of the South Shore's most important contests on Saturday.

• • •

Sophomore Quarterback Frank Cavallo, although he has not made the headlines as frequently as some of his more publicized teammates, is one of the main reasons for Weymouth's unmarred record.

• • •

Coach Charlie Walsh will pit the entire might of his Abington club against a strong Stoughton aggregation to avenge his initial setback of the campaign at the hands of Dedham last week-end.

• • •

Scituate High, having found itself in its last two starts, will endeaver to ring up its third straight victory at the expense of Randolph.

• • •

Everett Dorr, star of the halfback of Ed Stewart's Scituate squad, has shown himself to be one of the outstanding athletes in the South Shore circuit.

• • •

Whitman High after winning its first game of the season against Hingham will try its luck against a weak Milton eleven on its home field.

• • •

Don Plausse of the up and coming Whitman club, is one of the most versatile athletes in the South Shore loop. He acts as captain, team stratagist, passer, kicker, and runner is performing in grand style for the Elleman coached squad.

• • •

Hanover is coming out of the doldroms of former years and has proved itself to be one of the more powerful Class D elevens. Coach John McBain will attempt to pilot his charges to their third consecutive victory at the cost of Millis High.

• • •

Mel Butts, brilliant pass receiver and outstanding defense end who seems to be the stalwart of the Hanover line, will be one of the main factors in the Millis game.

• • •

Coach Bill Cronin still out for his primary win of the semester will have to pull a few tricks out of the old Hingham grab bag in order to score an upset over North Quincy on Saturday.

• • •

Marshfield, one of the co-holders of class D cellar, will trek to Somerset's home grounds this Saturday.

• • •

WONDERLAND REVERE

CHIEF—Ray Cole, from Arkansas, who'll quarterback Milwaukee Chiefs against Bears Sunday at Fenway Park. Cole was all-Southwest Conference selection last fall.

BEARS PLOT PASSES TO STOP MILWAUKEE

There's going to be an aerial circus at Fenway Park next Sunday afternoon, as far as Boston's amazing Bears are concerned.

Coach Eddie Casey, knowing of the vaunted defensive powers of the Milwaukee Chiefs, is spending all of this week brushing up on new pase plays from the spread formation in hopes of completely baffling the Milwaukee secondary.

STOPPED BULLS DEAD

The Chiefs, in their last game with the Columbus Bulls, the team that's deadlocked with the Bears for the league lead, never allowed them inside their 40-yard line all night except on that one 42-yard touchdown run by Jumping Joe Williams.

Earlier in the season the Chiefs tangled with the Kenosha Indians, a colorful mid-western pro team that had such stellar backs as Beattie Feathers, former All-America from Tennessee and the National League's leading ground gainer with the Chicago Bears a few years back, and Johnny Blood, once with the Packers. This team held Kenosha to one yard from the line of scrimmage for the afternoon.

CASEY PLANS AIR ATTACK

Knowing this, Eddie Casey is maping his offense plans accoruingly. If the Chiefs come up with their usual tightly packed defense to stop the Bears' running game the Boston outfit is just going to have Andy Karpus and Ernie Wheeler pass the invaders dizzy.

This air game will continue unless the Chiefs' defense widens. If that comes to pass, a couple of gents named Morrie Kohler and Vito Ananis will then put on exhibitions of plain and fancy ball carrying.

The Bears are out for their fifth straight victory, and the Chiefs look like the victim.

Providence Belts Rhode Island, 25 to 0

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 24 (AP)—Hard-hitting Providence College football team ground out a 25-0 victory over Rhode Island State.

The Friars scored in the second period, Ray Roy, halfback, going over from the 11-yard line.

George Sarris, center, intercepted a State pass in the third period and ran 92 yards to score.

Ed Roth, sub guard, snatched a State pass in the last few minutes and raced 81 yards for the last touchdown.

Crimson Flays Cornell Coach For Pro Eleven

who were headed for North Carolina, made an about-face and proceeded to Cornell at the heels of Father Snavely.

"The man's personal magnetism must be terrific!"

The Harvard daily concludes by saying that Cornell has violated the Presidents' Agreement and that Snavely actually ropes in the gridmen himself.

"The plain and simple fact of the matter is, as shown by the record, that Snavely an doubsidization travel hand in hand. This is not to detract from Snavely's reputation as a great football coach. He is one of the best. He has a practical football mind . . . practical to the point that he doesn't care to fool around with anything but hand-picked talent.

"Cornell two years ago signed the 'Presidents' Agreement,' which specifically condemns the practice of coaches embarking on football proselyting tours. Harvard has kept the agreement, Cornell has not.

"Carl Snavely is the biggest traveling salesman that ever wore the rubber off the tires of an automobile. Last year he drove several thousand miles in an effort to corral grid talent for Cornell's future teams.

"He hit all the football high spots, and the little football heathens from the hinterlands who had never heard of Cornell gathered 'round to hear the Ithacan apostle spread the golden word. And, like Caesar, Carl came, saw and conquered.

"Cornell didn't sign the President's Agreement,' she singed it."

P. S. NOTE OF IRONY: Harvard meets Cornell at Cambridge the second game of the season next year.

Teams Run in Cycles, Cornellians Insist

..ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 24 (INS)—Coach Carl Snavely and other Cornell officials today declined to comment on an attack in the Harvard Crimson against Cornell's football standards, but the blast was unofficially denied on every hand.

The basis of the argument in behalf of Cornell was that winninf football teams run in cycles here, just as they do at most universities and that Cornell in the last couple of seasons has hit the peak for the first time since 1923.

With the present team composed almost entirely of seniors, Cornell expects a slump again next year.

It was also pointed out that the scholarship standard for Cornell athletes is above the averoge for the university as a whole.

Behind Goal Posts

Back in 1903, Dartmouth christened Harvard Stadium with its first win over the Cambridge lads, 11-6, spark by Freshman Center Hooper, who opened manholes in the Crimson line . . . Other Dartmouth-Harvard highlights . . . Lanky Ham Fish's catch of Cutler's pass while on his knees on the Dartmouth eight-yard line, leading to Harvard's winning touchdown in '08 . . . Neidlinger's 48-yard field goal for Dartmouth in '22 . . . Swede Oberlander's aerial blitz in '25, which swamped the Hah-vuds . . . Art French's 50-yard dash in the last minute, topping the Indian, 16-12, in '26 . . . Recent Harvard headaches and Indian scalpers de luxe . . . Marster, McCall, Morton, McLeod, Hutchinson.

B. U. Invalids Report Back

With an open date Saturday, the usual frenzied Thursday and Friday practice sessions to straighten out offensive and defensive details is missing at Boston University's grid camp in Weston.

Instead, Coach Pat Hanley and his aides are going along slowly bringing their charges back to the peak they hit in the Cincinnati game for the all important clash with Western Reserve at Cleveland a week from Saturday.

Today's session will be devoted largely to running the squad back into shape after a soft week and there will be a scrimmage tomorrow afternoon.

The intra-squad battle will be largely between the reserves and those regulars who have any slight ailments will be kept from contact as the Terrier mentor is not taking chances on any more casualties.

As a matter of fact the injured men are rounding back into shape and many of them will be ready for Western Reserve. Capt. Jim McDonald, Sid Michaels, Ralph Salvati and a few others will be able to go against the Cats and this should strengthen the Terriers greatly.

DUNN FINDS CAUSE OF N. U. BAD KICKS

Northeastern's varsity football squad has spent a good part of its practice sessions this week is developing its forward passing attack, but the problem of converting points after touchdown also has been examined carefully.

The Huskies have missed four placement tries in games, so Coach Jimmy Dunn is very anxious to make sure that this doesn't happen again. He has found, however, that the trouble lies with the holder of the ball rather than with the kicker.

Just to satisfy on this matter, Dunn took over the job of placing the ball and 10 different members of the squad converted 54 out of 60 tries. The the regulars started holding the ball and then only one kick out of every three was good.

The Huskies expect to need every point against Upsala at East Orange on Saturday, because the Vikings have a strong, heavy team. Northeastern has not been able to scout Upsala carefully, as Dunn is considerably worried.

Dunn expressed considerable concern as to the condition of Jim Reilly and Ernie Colantonio, ranking ends. Both boys will make the trip, but Dunn now fears that neither will be able to play long.

FAIR SHOWERS CLOUDY RAIN

Pastor And His Church

There's no joy in the heart of this Roman Catholic pastor . . . as he ruefully surveys all that remains of his church in London after Nazi air raiders had blasted the structure to ruins. Only the church bell in its niche remains intact. Censor failed to state if there were casualties.

Good-By

Rescued

Although she was buried in debris in her home after a Nazi air bomb caved it in, this British girl manages a smile . . . upon being rescued by air raid workers.
